PARIS PEACE CONFERENCE IS REVIEWED

Mr. D. H. Miller, Legal Advisor to President Wilson, Gives Personal Impressions of Meeting

THINKS CRITICISM IS UNJUSTIFIED

Creation of League of Nations and Insistency on Diplomacy by Contact, Achievements of Value

THE decisions reached at the Paris Peace Conference, and the treaties there approved, have met with much criticism. In the view of Mr. David Hunter Miller, of New York, much of the criticism is unjustified. Mr. Miller, who was legal advisor to President Woodrow Wilson at the conference, has a Summer home at Metuchen, and was the speaker last evening at a community lecture at "Twelve," Metuchen, the residence of Mrs. M. A. MacVicker.

He gave an interesting and instructive address on "Recollections of the Peace Conference." With Sir Cecil Hurst, of the British Foreign Office, he was responsible for the final draft of the Covenant of the League of Nations, submitted to the Peace Conference and subsequently incorporated in the Treaty of Versailles.

Mr. Miller is well known in the United States and Europe as an international lawyer and writer, and has recently issued a two-volume historical work, "The Drafting of the Covenant."

A CRITICAL SITUATION Explaining why the Peace Conference had been faced with almost insurmountable difficulties, which, necessarily would make its decisions unpopular, thereafter he described the conditions under which the conference was held.

PLANE CRASHES HIGHWAY COACH

Twenty-Nine Passengers in Bus but No One Injured—Coach Continues Journey

VANCOUVER, Aug. 10.—Striking an air pocket as it was flying low over the Pacific Highway, before landing at Bellingham Air Service Field, just north of Bellingham, an airplane crashed into the rear end of a Vancouver-bound motor coach at 4 o'clock on Thursday afternoon. Though the bus was loaded, having twenty-nine passengers on board, no one was injured.

The pilot of the airplane, R. C. Graham, and a passenger, Cliff Barlow, who were returning from a flight to Anacortes, escaped with a shaking-up. The machine landed in the ditch and was badly damaged. The plane's motor had been throttled down in preparation for landing, and the machine was gliding in towards the field. Its propeller struck the rear end of the stage, smashing the glass in the rear window and doing considerable damage to the coach.

The crash shook the heavy bus, but none of the passengers was injured. The driver of the stage coach, David D. Boyle, New Westminster, continued on his way after the plane had been moved off the highway.

Milk Consumers Pay Twice What Producers Get

VANCOUVER, Aug. 10.—Evidence at the milk investigation Friday afternoon showed a spread of over fifty per cent of the consumers' price of milk is absorbed by dairies after the milk is purchased from producers. It was shown that where a dairy pays 21-3-4 cents per gallon to the producer, it receives 44 cents per gallon from the consumer. This evidence was brought out by W. L. Macken, of the Fraser Valley Milk Producers' Association, when he cross-examined Henry Taylor, of the City Dairy & Produce Company, J. B. Williams, city solicitor, defended his application for public statements regarding prices paid and received by various dairies for milk.

GERMANY CELEBRATES BIRTH OF REPUBLIC

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—The stage was set today for a brilliant celebration of the ninth anniversary of Constitution Day tomorrow. Enormous searchlights have been placed on the housetops to the right and left of the Brandenburg arch, and similar lights flank the outside stairway of the Reichstag.

The celebration will begin at noon in the presence of President Hindenburg and all of his Cabinet.

COAL MINERS VOTE STRIKE IN ALBERTA

To Suspend Work From Saturday Night in Six Mines in Red Deer Coal Area Near Drumheller

WANT RECOGNITION OF CANADIAN UNION

DRUMHELLER, Alta., Aug. 10.—By an overwhelming vote tonight, the miners of the Wayne district voted to reject the proposed agreement with the operators. After the result of the vote was announced, the miners met and decided on a "suspension of work" from Saturday night. This suspension will continue indefinitely until an agreement is reached between a committee appointed by the men and the operators.

Six mines are concerned and at full running capacity they employ 1,000 men. The crux of the question at issue is the proposed introduction of screens in the mines and the recognition of the Canadian Miners' Union of Canada.

NEW YORK CENTRAL FLYER LEAVES RAILS

FONDA, N.Y., Aug. 10.—Eighteen persons were injured, one seriously, and a score badly shaken when a diner and Pullman chair car of New York Central Train No. 1, left the rails and hung over the edge of a fifteen-foot embankment near here today. The train, eastbound Chicago to New York, was traveling at a rate of speed at the time of the accident. The cause of the accident had not been determined tonight.

CROATS BITTER AGAINST SERBS

JUGOSLAVIA DISTRACTED BY RACIAL PREJUDICES—VARIOUS INCIDENTS

Burial of Peasant Party Leader Is Made Occasion for Rally of Croat Race

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, Aug. 10.—An endless train of weeping mourners today and tonight passed by the body of Stefan Raditch, Croatian Peasant Party leader, who died in a catafalque in the headquarters of the Peasant Party. Preparations are being made to receive 300,000 persons from all parts of Croatia, who are expected to attend the funeral on Sunday. Telegrams of condolence are continually arriving from many parts of the world. Although there has been no untoward incident, the bitterness of feeling between the races which make up the kingdom, has been shown in several instances. Mrs. Raditch has refused to accept the messages of condolence offered by the Belgrade Government. Austrian newspapers were seized and burned in the square at Jellachitch this evening when it was discovered they contained a picture of Raditch wearing the Serbian national headgear. The Croats declare that the photograph was faked, since Raditch had never donned the Serbian cap. A Vienna newspaper says, however, that Raditch, elated at the unification of Croatia and Serbia directly after the war, put on the Serbian national headgear and was photographed while wearing it.

FOG BLINDS SHIPPING

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Ocean liners and river craft groped like blind men in New York harbor today, dense fog swirling close to the water, making progress even at the slowest speeds. One ferryboat twice stranded on mud flats, but no collisions were reported. Several liners were held in quarantine.

ALPINISTS IN SNOWSTORM MEET DEATH

When Nearing Summit of Peak Climbers Find Themselves Unable Either to Proceed or Return

ONE BECOMES MAD; FALLS OVER CLIFF

Another Is Killed When Rope Breaks on Which He Is Being Hoisted Up by Rescuers.

VIENNA, Aug. 10.—Two young Alpinists died, and a third was rescued with frozen feet after being marooned for three days and nights, as a result of their attempts to scale the sheer sides of Dacstein, the tallest peak of its range in the Austrian Alps. Four others in the party were rescued unharmed by the exposure, according to word received from Schladming today.

Seven young mountain climbers, all accomplished and experienced, had ascended about 8,000 of the 9,000 feet to the summit, when they encountered a snowstorm which prevented them from either proceeding or returning.

They took shelter on a ledge. One youth, named Sturm, went mad from their horrible position. His companions clamped him to the rock, but he freed himself and disappeared over the precipice. It was impossible to rescue the survivors directly, but a rescue party climbed above them and lowered a rope. One by one they were drawn up, but as the fifth, named Windsteig, was being hoisted, the rope broke and he was hurled back down the mountain side to his death.

Before a new rope could be knotted together, night shut down and the last of the party was forced to remain over another night.

BRAZIL'S REVOLT HAS COMMENCED

REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENT IS REPORTED IN CHIEF PROVINCE OF INTERIOR

Censorship Apparently Established in Rio de Janeiro—News Comes Via Paraguay

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Aug. 10.—A revolutionary movement, broken out in the State of Mato Grosso, Brazil, according to a telegram received by the Minister of the Interior from the town of Pedro Juan Caballero, on the Brazilian frontier. It is believed here that Pedro Celestino, who is thought to be in Rio de Janeiro, is the leader of the revolt.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 10.—It is believed here that a censorship has been established in Brazil, since no news dispatches were received from Rio de Janeiro today.

MORE THAN 23,000 UNEMPLOYED APPLY FOR HARVEST WORK

LONDON, Aug. 10.—More than 23,000 unemployed have so far applied for harvest work in Canada. The Minister of Labor announced this evening.

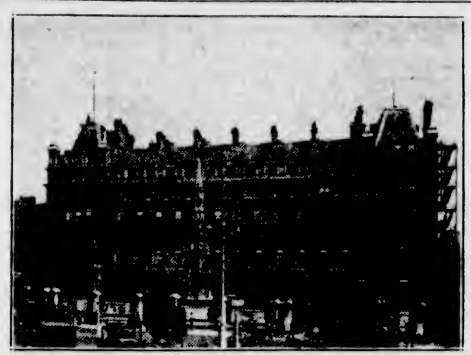

A large proportion of the applicants have not yet been given medical examination, but the Canadian authorities have accepted 6,212. The remainder of the 10,000 men wanted should be obtained without any difficulty. The Canadian newspaper says, however, that Raditch, elated at the unification of Croatia and Serbia directly after the war, put on the Serbian national headgear and was photographed while wearing it.

VOLCANO DRAWS MANY TOURISTS

Eruption at Vesuvius Is Centre of Attraction—Descent Is Made Into Crater

NAPLES, Aug. 10.—The eruption of Mount Vesuvius was diminishing tonight, although the small cone which has been in the centre of the disturbance for several days was again active, explosively erupting and frequently throwing out small incandescent cinders. The seismographs at the observatory on the mountain showed an increased movement in the earth. Professor Alessandro Malladra, head of the observatory on the slopes of Mount Vesuvius, descended into the crater of the volcano today, despite the explosions and rumblings and emissions of lava, cinders, and ashes which mark the mountain's present activity. "There is no danger," so said the professor as he let himself down the slope. The volcano has become the Mecca for thousands of tourists.

Landmark to Be Removed

CHARING CROSS Station, shown in the illustration, is to be demolished as part of a scheme for overcoming both railway and road traffic congestion. A new station will be built on the south side of the river. The scheme to relieve traffic conditions in old London will cost $60,000,000.

FLOOD WATERS COVER WIDTH OF 25 MILES

Vast Sheet of Flood Water Covers Lowlands in Florida—Many Communities Are Isolated

TRAFFIC STOPS ON ROAD AND RAILWAY

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 10.—A vast sheet of flood waters, twenty-five miles wide in places and of undetermined length, lay tonight in the Everglades lowlands, west of Fort Pierce and around the eastern and northern shores of Lake Okechobee, as a result of torrential rains accompanying the West Indian hurricane.

Within the expanse were many marooned families, thousands of acres of fertile tillands, citrus groves and settlements. Definite news from many communities awaited the recession of the water. Highways were blocked by washouts or overflowed, and the few caravans which have emerged or entered have done so under difficulties.

FOUR FEET DEEP IN TOWN

Okechobee City, with about 1,200 population, was the largest affected town. Storm damage to the city was estimated at many thousands of dollars.

Efforts to reach Indiantown, where two men were reported killed, were unavailing as the highway to that place, twenty miles southeast of Okechobee, was impassable and the railroad out of service. Water was said to be four feet deep in the town.

Fifty persons were marooned at Hull's Grove, five miles west of Jupiter, where the Lomahatchee River race and sejour of the country for miles. Reports from the outlying districts that four or five persons had been killed during the hurricane, remained unconfirmed, but nothing has been heard from a flying boat which left Nassau, Bahamas, on Wednesday for Bimini, with two men aboard. Little hope was held for their safety, although aviators said the plane may have sought shelter in some isolated island.

Old Age Pensions Act Of Manitoba In Force

WINNIPEG, Aug. 10.—The Manitoba Government today, by an order-in-council, brought into effect the Old Age Pensions Act passed at the last session of the Legislature. Beginning in September, pensioners whose applications have been approved by the Manitoba Workmen's Compensation Board, will receive the stipulated pension of $20 a month. It is reported that 3,000 persons have already made application for a pension.

FATAL EXPLOSION ON FISHING BOAT

VANCOUVER, Aug. 10.—Hurled into the water by the force of an explosion which ignited the Canadian Fishing Company's gasboat Nesto here early Tuesday morning, Albert Davidson, thirty-two, died in hospital this afternoon from burns about the body. Davidson went aboard the vessel to make preparations for a trip to the West Coast of Vancouver Island. A few minutes later the explosion occurred.

The forward part of the superstructure of the craft was destroyed before the fire was extinguished by the fire department.

ONE HUNDRED LIVES TAKEN BY EXPLOSION

Western Portion of Town at Italian Naval Base Is Destroyed—Petroleum Tanks Spread Fire

BLAST DAMAGES SHIPS IN PORT

VIENNA, Aug. 10.—The Abend says today that, notwithstanding Italian official denial, it has direct reports that the explosion in a torpedo factory at the Italian naval base in Spezia last week, took nearly 100 lives. The newspaper adds that several ships in the harbor, including a destroyer and two warships, were damaged, while the western portion of the town was consumed by fire, starting from petroleum tanks.

CAR ROTTEN EGGED

VANCOUVER, Aug. 10.—Swooping down on a street car on Granville Street, between Broadway and Eighth Avenue, a gang of youthful hoodlums laid down a barrage of rotten eggs against the vehicle about 9 o'clock Thursday evening.

The street car was so badly splattered with the odiferous ammunition that the conductor was forced to return it to the car barns. None of the passengers was struck. It was stated Constables of the prowler squad responded to a call and searched the neighborhood, but no trace of the offenders could be found.

WHEAT CROP OF 1927 MARKETED

JULY EXPORT DEMAND CAUSES LARGEST WHEAT MOVEMENT DURING YEAR

Statistician of Grain Board Reports Total of 38,000,000 Bushels Already Sold

FORT WILLIAM, Aug. 10.—Granted favorable weather until harvesting is well under way, probably in two weeks, Canadian farmers will garner the biggest crop in the history of the Dominion. This is the opinion expressed by E. A. Urrell, statistician to the Board of Grain Commissioners, in his monthly report on crop movement.

Mr. Urrell notes with satisfaction the comparatively small carry-over contrasted with the situation a month ago. His summary for the wheat movement for the "crop year" just ended follows:

Shipments from Fort William—Port Arthur, Vancouver, Prince Rupert, Duluth-Superior, 347,458,370 bushels.

Stocks in store, Western grain inspection division, 35,061,250; milled in Western grain inspection division, 41,500,000; seed requirement, 41,000,000; in transit on July 31, 30,608,350. Reduced stocks in store and in transit, July 31, 1927, 30,618,000. Net total of 1927 wheat crop marketed, 439,574,870 bushels.

"As a result of a very substantial export demand from European immigration, movement of Canadian wheat was heavier in July than in any other month of the year. Stocks were moved out of the Western inspection division so rapidly that the comparatively small carry-over in or in transit was little more than 38,224,000 bushels, as compared with 406,000 bushels a year ago at this time."

FATALLY BURNED

SEATTLE, Aug. 10.—Fatally burned when a gasoline explosion made him a human torch, Sinclair B. Sloan, twenty-one, died at the City Hospital last night. Charles Harris, steamboat operator, was severely burned about the hands in a futile effort to save the youth's life.

Forest Fires Menace Sooke Farms, Timber And City Watershed

Two Outbreaks, Covering Area of Four Square Miles, Are Raging Inferno as Flames Race Before Stiff Breeze—Several Homesteads Are in Path of Blaze

Conflagration Is Creeping Over Ridge Toward Reservoir

FOREST fires that broke out yesterday in two places near Victoria, gained serious proportions in the half-race that fanned the flames into a veritable inferno, with the result that, late last night, ranches with their crops ready for harvesting, valuable stands of timber, and the city's Goldstream watershed were menaced. The first fire broke out near the Goldstream Crossroad, and, in the stiff breeze that was blowing, rapidly spread before Fire Warden Girling could get his men to the scene. The fire jumped the road near the crossroad and swept through Mr. Woodruff's orchard. Neighbors and firefighters, rushed to the scene from the city, fought desperately to save the house and barns, with the result that, apart from being scorched, the buildings remain intact, although the crop was wiped out.

At 10 o'clock last night the fire had run along the road for a mile and spread over the ridge for a distance of two miles. Where it had jumped the road near the Goldstream Crossroad, the men were able to hold back the fire so that late last night only a skeleton crew was needed there.

CREEPIER OVER RIDGE

On the north side of the road, however, the bush and forest fire, two miles in, is one mass of flame. It was steadily creeping up over the ridge toward the Humpback Road where the pipeline from the Sooke watershed runs along to connect with the Humpback reservoir in the Goldstream watershed.

Panned by a wind of some thirty miles' velocity, the flames were leaping from tree to tree. The wind carried sparks for half a mile to start a second fire within a few hundred yards of the Dewdney farm. The large fire was rapidly gaining on the smaller and was expected to spread fast on the burned area of the latter near the Dewdney ranch.

SEVENTY MEN EMPLOYED Seventy men worked all night to keep the blaze under control, but residents in the district, realizing the rapidly with which the fire was spreading, took every precaution to protect their farms, which were whose homes and ranches were not threatened, helped the fire-fighters to stop the onward rush of the flames.

The main fire started about noon, and the blaze that threatened the destruction of several farmhouses, together with the barns, contained the crop of the season, near the Dewdney farm broke out about 2 o'clock in the afternoon from sparks waiting along on the breeze.

The smaller outbreak kept the residents of the vicinity up all last night, guarding their homes and barns lest sparks from the burning timber a short distance away would carry destruction to the farm buildings.

Here the fire swept the hillside and with sparks flying in the general direction of the farm buildings of Mr. Frank Waite, of the Dewdney farm, and Mr. Frank Osborne, the situation was bad.

FARMS THREATENED Fortunately the Hatch farm buildings were across the road from the fire with the wind favorable for carrying it away from it. Unfortunately for the Waite and Osborne farms, the situation was bad.

PARTY LEADERS ARE CONDEMNED

Commissioner Lamb, of Salvation Army, Assails Lack of Adequate Migration Policy

MANCHESTER, England, Aug. 10.—In an address on immigration, Commissioner David Lamb, of the Salvation Army, said that four years ago the British Labor Party was opposed to emigration; three years ago it was less opposed to it; two years ago it was silent on the matter; now it was asking questions about it. "We might have to look to Labor for a solution, but the transitional Liberal policy is anti-migration," he said.

Commissioner Lamb declared he would like to lock up Premier Baldwin, Lloyd George and Ramsay MacDonald, the three political leaders in Downing Street, "on short rations and without gold," and tell them they could not eat until the problem was settled. The present Government, with its large majority in Parliament, could have done anything it liked in seven years.

There had never been less than a million unemployed, Commissioner Lamb said. The Salvation Army had placed 160,000 persons overseas with assured settlement. It had always promised to bring a man back to Britain if necessary. "But not much had been spent on that part of it," he said.

KILLED AT HIS MINE

COROVIA, Aug. 10.—William Quitch, astounded prospector, killed and mugged a quarter of a century for the elusive gold. With the glittering fortune in his grasp he was hurled down a 400-foot cliff before his mine at Mineral Creek yesterday, when a cable broke, and is dying at the Corovia Hospital.

Quitch's "mine" went an Indian runner fourteen miles down the river to Valdes for help. A small power boat fought its way through the sea for twelve hours to bring the prospector to the hospital.

Empire Settlement Board Chairman To Arrive Monday

OTTAWA, Aug. 10.—Lord Lovat, chairman of the Empire Settlement Board, who was expected to be in Ottawa tomorrow for a conference with Hon. Robert Burke, Minister of Immigration, will not arrive here before Monday, owing to the C.P.R. Empress of Scotland being delayed in the Atlantic my fog. The conference has been postponed until August 16.
Lord Lovat will make a tour of Canada in the interest of British emigration, and will be accompanied by C. F. Pland and Mr. Stevington, secretary and treasurer respectively of the Overseas Settlement Commission, who have been in Canada for some weeks and are completing a survey of the Maritime Provinces. The Minister of Immigration is on his way from the West for the conference.

The visitor to the hotel paused at the threshold and inspected what lay beyond.
"This won't do," she declared. "I won't have this room. I refuse to pay all that money for such a small room. You think because I am from the provinces you can—"
The uniformed attendant smiled at her pityingly.
"Stay in, Madame," he interrupted. "This ain't your room. This is the lift!"

Which will you leave—a legacy of debts and worries or a bequest of happiness and protection?

EXHIBITION IS POPULAR

Collection of Oil and Water-Color Paintings at Crystal Garden Attracts Many Visitors

VARIETY OF THEME GIVES INTEREST

The exhibition of water color and oil paintings by "The Esquimaux Four," continues to draw many visitors to the Crystal Garden Gallery, and an increasing number of red labels attached to the pictures indicates a steady percentage of purchases.

The big pastels of Coast Inlet scenery by H. Dugby Robinson seize the attention immediately on entering, occupying a commanding position in the gallery. The jewel-like brilliance of their coloring, typical of the keen blues of water, mountain and sky along the British Columbia Coast, and a definite style and similarity of subject as this group apart as the work of one man. Anyone who loves the sapphire and purple silences of these Canadian inlets is attracted at once to these perfections in pastel. Gleaming snows catch the eye in one; the agate-like green of a first-class slope in another; the swirl of tidal waters in another. Blue spears of mountain block the middle distance in "Entrance to Toke Inlet"; sweeping curves fill the foreground in "Cordero Channel"; "Desolation Sound" and "Jervis Inlet." The artist's great power lies in his ability to interpret something of the silence and immensity of the rugged coastline, portrayed with grim, yet beautiful, realism.

Miss Jean Middleton Donald and Miss Helen Streetfield, two of the most ambitious and talented of Victoria's younger artists, have made a generous contribution to the exhibition. Each artist shows a versatile style; the former has water colors, illustrations and oils; the latter, oils, pastels, black and white, and water colors. Miss Middleton's work with a variety of nature subjects: gardens, orchards, bits of seascapes. Numbers 39, 41, 42 and 47 are particularly noteworthy. Number 39, "An Okanagan Orchard," shows fruit trees in bloom, hills covered with the young green of Spring amplifying the Spring-like feeling which the artist has so happily infused into her picture.

PICTURESQUE INDUSTRY
Number 41 portrays industry picturesquely in "Yarrows," with the strong, weathered hull of a ship under repair providing the dominant red of the picture, and the quaint angles of a derrick supplementing the suggestion of toiling activity. Nearby, Number 42, "Grey October," pictures in greys and shadowy greens a lighthouse with its surrounding trees and background of mountains and drifting mist; it is a pleasing composition. One of Miss Donald's best works, however, is Number 47, "Garden of Mrs. Walter Nichol," a beautiful bit of riotous yet orderly color, in which are discovered Canterbury bells, an irregular circle of delphiniums, tulips and other glowing flowers. The outline of the house, lodged high against the sky, completes a very charming study. Some of this artist's old-world subjects are very charming, notably two bridge scenes (Numbers 7 and 18).

Miss Streetfield pursues the decorative and imaginative rather than the realistic. "Happy Cottage" (Number 58) and "Mellow Sunlight," are both conveying out to the heart of a wood to the witch's house in Hansel and Gretel. Number 61, "Spume," is nothing but a curling peacock-colored wave, but is very attractive; Number 64, "The Yellow Hat," is a portrait poster, notable for its grace of line and generally pleasing design; her "Cover Design for Fairy Tales" (Number 80) is distinguished, and it seems to be in this field that she does her finest work. Numbers 77, 81 and 86 are also imaginative subjects. The illustration for "A Little Girl With Shining Eyes," a charming idea, the picture filling an oval space. Black and white work by the same artist includes a group of imaginative drawings for illustration purposes. In the very last of her collection, moving from left to right, one comes across the best of her landscape subjects. "Quarantine Station, William Head," Number 94, which is graphic.

WONDERFUL VERSATILITY
One of the most gifted of Canada's water colorists is Mr. A. M. D. Fairman. To or three previous exhibitions have assisted in bringing attention to his work, but his prolific and apparently always busy brush goes on recording life as it passes, with the result that he has a continuously fresh gallery to show. Mingled with the almost stark realism of his portraiture is an interpretive gift. Life is not only colorful, but it has its mystical aspects as well. Something of this is embodied in every picture, whether the subject is only a camel or whether it is the superior being, Man.

In his portrait work there is likeness, character, strength of treatment both in respect of technique and interpretation. The excellent portrait in charcoal of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, R. Randolph Bruce, is an example. Originally shows in the handling of many subjects: "Children of the Mist" (106) and "The Silver Dawn, Alert Bay" (109), are little water-color paintings. Indian canoes, but the craft, filled with almost indistinguishable copy figures, have animation, personality, with their serpent-like prow. "Blackfoot Warriors on Their Way to the Sun Dance Ceremony" (107) pictures, in dazzling sunshine and under a clear sky, an Indian legion, mounted on its way across the desert. Another Indian subject, thoroughly gruesome, but very cleverly drawn, is "Kwakwaka'wakw Wearing Ceremonial Mask and Robe" (101). Another Indian subject, in oils, (112), "Blackfoot Patrol," shows strong definition and expressive delineation in the Indian figures silhouetted against the sky.

ORIENTAL SUBJECTS
Quite different in style, technique

and subject is Number 110, "In the shadows of Bethesda," a Biblical scene in a Biblical setting, with sheep grazing peacefully in the shadows of a great hill. Another Oriental subject is Number 129, "Old town, Gibraltar." Numbers 109 and 105 have been sold, the former, a water color, the latter a picture of the Inner Harbor during fog. In the confused haze can be discerned the lowering outlines of one of the big C.P.R. vessels, and smaller boats groping about beneath. Number 128, "Parliament Buildings," has been selected for special exhibition in previous exhibitions. Another picture familiar to Victorians is a view of the Olympics taken from Macaulay Plains, with a fine suggestion of distance, ruggedness and intervening sea. This picture in the foreground assist the perspective and add interest. In its big range of subjects the artist has not neglected the Rockies. Number 122, a picture of the "Mount of the Holy Cross," is a beautiful water color, with a depth and three-dimensionality of treatment. The rarely used, but very effective medium of tempera is employed by the artist with remarkably good result in two pictures, one of the Reformed Episcopal Church, Victoria, the other of St. Paul's, London. In the latter it is particularly impressive, suggesting the night colors much better than is possible with water colors.

The exhibition will be open until the end of August.

REALTORS SEE WORSTED MILL

Mr. John Moore, Promoter of Enterprise, Addresses Gathering and Conducts Party Over Plant

At an informal luncheon of the Victoria Real Estate Board held in the British Columbia Worsteds Mills, Ltd., new plant on Dallas Road, Mr. John Moore, promoter of the enterprise, in addressing the gathering, said:

"This is the first venture of its kind on the Pacific Coast. There is no doubt that it will forge ahead. Like all pioneer ventures in the commercial world, there are difficulties which must be surmounted, but we shall overcome them. Of that we have no doubt. Nothing stands in our way to progress which causes us alarm."

"There is no finer location on the Pacific Coast for a worsted mill, and the climate of Victoria is unequalled by anything in the world. Further, the mill will be blessed with intelligent help. These three things are great contributing factors to the success of any project of the kind."

Following his address, in which he told of his experiences in India and Africa, the realtors were shown over the plant, and the operation of the machinery explained.

SLOW INCREASE IN POPULATION

ANNUAL GAIN IN CANADA IN PRESENT DECADE LESS THAN IN LAST

Dominion Bureau of Statistics Estimates Present Number in Canada at 9,658,000

OTTAWA, Aug. 10.—Canada's population is estimated by the Bureau of Statistics at 9,658,000, an increase of 139,000 over the estimate for last year.
Estimates of population are in figures for 1927 and 1928 respectively: Prince Edward Island, 86,700; Nova Scotia, 543,000; 547,000; New Brunswick, 411,000; 415,000; Quebec, 2,694,000; 2,647,000; Ontario, 3,187,000; 3,229,000; Manitoba, 647,000; 655,000; Saskatchewan, 836,000; 851,000; Alberta, 617,000; 631,000; British Columbia, 575,000; 583,000; Yukon, 3,470; 3,500.
Northwest Territories, 9,050; 9,200.
When the last Dominion census was taken in 1921, the population was computed at 8,788,000. The increase in the last seven years, therefore, was 870,000, or an average of 124,000 a year. The increase in population between 1911 and 1921, the previous census and 1921, was 1,560,000, an average of 156,000 per year. This period included the war years.

SUMMER SCHOOL COMES TO END

Closing Exercises Held Last Evening Provide Demonstration of Good Class Work

HUNDREDS PRESENT AT LAST CONCERT

An annually increasing interest in the Provincial Summer School for teachers was again demonstrated last evening by the vast number of people present at the High School for the closing exercises. Beginning with the filling of the classrooms at 7 o'clock by visitors wishing to see the splendid exhibits of art, design, needlework, map projects, etc., there was a steady stream of new visitors among the most interested and appreciative of those present at the closing proceedings being Dr. Willis, superintendent of education. A programme of music by Mr. P. C. T. Wickett's and Mr. F. Waddington's classes, and J. M. Barrie's charming violin play, "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," by the expressional reading class of the literature class, constituted the earlier part of the evening's entertainment in the main auditorium; and the latter part was occupied with a demonstration of folk dancing by Miss Thorpe's class. Mr. John Kyle, the energetic director of the Summer School, had general charge of the entire proceedings.

The musical part of the programme again offered surprising evidence of what it is possible to accomplish in the short space of five weeks if the teacher and the material are good. A six-piece orchestra led by Mr. Wickett entertained those present while the audience was gathering, and Mr. Wickett still conducting, there followed, as the opening part of the programme, a group of madrigals, part songs and vocal numbers devised with a view to showing the work of the vocal music class and the Summer School orchestra. Chief among the vocal school numbers were the bright opening madrigal, "Sing a Light and Cheerful Lay" (E. Nichol), the lilting-rhythmic "Goodbye Song," by E. Roberts, and Markham Lee's "Dream Seller," the time and balance in which were excellent. Miss Payne delighted with a vocal solo, "Break o' Day," showing a charming voice of sympathetic, bright quality, and an animated style. Mr. Stuart Tate, music teacher, and Mr. J. M. Grey, contributed a violin solo which was much enjoyed.

The choral class and supervisors' class gave examples of their work. Mr. Waddington's manner of conducting indicating an unusual gift for conveying an idea to his students and getting them to interpret it. His special ties in the translation of the spirit of the song, and to this end he applies a few simple rules of technique to the production of the required tone and shading, phrasing and rhythm. The results are admirable. A "laughing" tone rang through Del Riego's "Happy Song," a lively spirit, strict tempo, crisp attack characterized "Cuckoo," and a classic quality was infused into Handel's "O Lovely Peace," which was sung by the most popular conditions in the programme. Mrs. Wilcox, supervisor at Vernon, and Mr. Bruce Fletcher, of Vancouver, contributed the supervised class in two numbers of rather difficult character. "Lift Thine Eyes," and "Waldorf Davies' 'Cradle Song.'" The accompaniment, Mrs. Green, was presented with a bouquet.

If the admirable performance of Barrie's "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals" is a fair example of what the expressional reading class will do hereafter, the dramatic part of the Summer School entertainments will become too popular to be limited to the crowded programme of a closing night. Miss H. M. Baker and Mr. C. William Stubbs as "The Old Lady" and "Pie Dowie," respectively, played with surprising power and was undisturbed that both Miss Baker and Mr. Stubbs were coached for the part by Scottish friends, but they might easily have passed as native Canadians. Purnishings were lent for the play by Hill's Furniture Store. Mr. E. R. Chamberlain, who took the role of the curate, was instructor of the class. Other players were Miss M. M. Kettley, Miss E. S. Robertson and Miss B. E. Ward.

The gymnasium, while excellent for the folk dancing display, offers far too small accommodation for the big number of spectators wishing to see the performance. The instructor this year has been Miss Gladys Thorpe, who has concentrated on the teaching of steps and dances which teachers can impart to young children. Simplicity, rhythm, and picturesque character characterized the various dances shown, a Dutch dance, a Swedish group, a dignified Grecian dance symbolic of the growing and reaping and gathering of grain; a colorful Spanish dance with tambourines; an interpretive ballroom dance; two comical dances, "Goosey, Goosey Gander," and "The Toad's Mistake"; a symbolic "Vineyard Dance," showing the sowing of seeds, picking of grapes, and twining of vines; a garland dance, of classical character; and a charming minuet, danced by four couples in powder-period dress, were the chief items in the programme. Mr. B. E. Ryall presided at the piano very effectively.

TEACHERS PLAN VISIT TO GENEVA

Mr. H. Charlesworth, Back From Dominion Federation Sessions, Reviews Discussions

One of the most important subjects before the ninth convention of the Canadian Teachers' Federation was the projected visit to Geneva next Summer of a big party of Canadian teachers, reports Mr. Harry Charlesworth, secretary of B.C. Federation, who has just returned to the Coast after attending the proceedings in Winnipeg. Mr. Charlesworth is a visitor in Victoria for a few days, accompanied by his wife and family, and reports that he is combining business and pleasure. Already he has had interviews with Dr. Willis, superintendent of education, on matters relating to the work of his department.

At the federation meetings at Winnipeg, Mr. Charlesworth states, consideration of regulations governing teacher-training with a view to raising the standards and thereby decreasing the surplusage of teachers in the market at the present time, occupied an important place. All provinces in the Dominion, in common with British Columbia, are experiencing a surplus of teachers owing to the heavy output of the provincial normal schools during the last few years. A resolution introduced at one of the sessions, which in effect calls for Grade 12 standing on the part of normal school candidates, was directly aimed at delimiting the number of normal school students and graduates.

The whole thing, lifted down, means that an effort is being made to determine whether normal school training should be given as one of the accepted higher education courses or only to those students who intend to follow teaching as a profession," says Mr. Charlesworth, who states that it is generally recognized that many present-day normal school students have no intention whatever of teaching. The federation, on the other hand, thinks that the high school and university only should take care of higher education, and that this is not the function of the normal school.

So far as the work of the B.C. Teachers' Federation is concerned, their chief concern is the question of superannuation. Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec already have secured this; Nova Scotia adopted it at the last session of the Legislature. The measure has already come before Parliament here and the Legislature has agreed to draw up a bill. This will be watched with interest by the Teachers' Federation of the province.

Mr. Charlesworth was an interested member of the audience at the Summer School closing exercises last night.

A GERMAN ANNIVERSARY

Nine years ago today, August 11, 1919, at Weimar, Germany adopted the republican form of government. There has been an increasing observance during the last few years of this date as Constitution Day and throughout all the German states, even in monarchical Bavaria, the Federal Government will today fly from its post offices and custom houses the black-red-gold flag of the Republic.

Support of the republican as against the monarchical form is evidently growing in Germany. At the election of May 30, the Nationalists, the out-and-out monarchical party, lost thirty-seven seats, and hold only one-fifth of the strength in the present Reichstag. "The conclusion to be drawn from the German election," said The Paris Temps the next day, "is that, despite Nationalist reaction and Communist revolution, the German Republic has become a reality, a force capable of asserting itself effectively, and that is a fact of classical importance in the politics of Europe." For the present, at any rate, to use a phrase current in Germany, Potsdam, the old imperial home, is being retired for Weimar, the birthplace of the Republic. Only war heroes like Von Hindenburg, who, as President of the Republic, accepted the new order, have survived in public favor.

The dominant idea of the German people as the Republic enters upon the tenth year of its existence, is internal consolidation and social progress. In order to survive they have been compelled to repress domestic strife and build up home interests. Along this line the various coalition governments have moved. Germany has numerous political parties, and in order to carry on government, co-operation involving compromise between otherwise contradictory parties has been necessary. The present Government is a combination of Socialists and Catholics, a surprising combination, in view of the anti-clerical nature of Marxian Socialism. The bloc system has tended to drive conflicting parties together and among other results has been the handicap laid upon the monarchical movement.

Foreign affairs for the moment loom less largely in the German mind. This does not mean that the Germans are content to accept the prolongation of the Ruhr occupation, nor to acquiesce in the losses they have sustained in the East and in Africa. The taxpayers are providing funds for an efficient fighting fleet. The naval budget of 221,000,000 marks, according to a Berlin United Press dispatch, is larger than that of Italy and falls short of that of France by only 20,000,000 marks. Germany, however, has not built as many fighting ships as the Versailles Treaty allowed. The Treaty forbids her both submarine and aircraft, a tremendous handicap on Germany's fighting ability in any future war.

PROGRESS OF HEALTH CAMPAIGN

Critics of the medical profession—they are few but vociferous—seldom or never allude to the historical record of health preservation. Such allusion would tend to destroy their argument, but little good can come out of medicine or surgery. Within the last century alone there has been a stupendous change in the weapons used for the attack on and the defence against disease. There are today greater expectations of longer life than there have been for centuries. That is partly due to medical and partly to sanitary science. The latter has been promoted by teaching all to make a greater use of fresh air, sunlight, clean water and happiness.

Lord Astor, in presiding at the Congress of the Royal Sanitary Institute, gave a bird's-eye view of the progress of the medical and sanitary sciences. In 1349, more than half the population of Britain had been wiped out by the Black Death; nine-tenths of the population in Bristol alone had died, and London had suffered terribly. Three centuries later the Plague again visited the land, spreading death and desolation in its train. In London 100,000 inhabitants had died. In John Wesley's day, Lord Astor pointed out, fewer than twenty-five children out of every 100 lived to see their fifth birthday. In other words, seventy-five per cent died prematurely.

Today, with the progress that has been made, only five children out of every 100 do not live to five years of age. There are far fewer lives now lost by plague, including smallpox. Experts, Lord Astor says, including doctors, have changed their modes of treatment. The leading physicians are now trusting increasingly to the use of a few well-known and well-tried therapeutic agents. "Quaintly enough," says Lord Astor, "the inventions of medical science are being used for other purposes. Signor Mussolini, for instance, has shown how nursery medicines may be employed to enforce law and order and to quell revolutions. That homely therapeutic agent, castor oil, has been more effective in converting rebellious Italians into law-abiding citizens than ever the deepest dungeons of Mussolini's predecessors. Lord Astor has one suggestion to make for further improvement in health conditions. He advocates a law to reduce the smoke nuisance, to encourage the conversion of coal into smokeless fuel and power, if possible, at the pit mouth.

BLOCKING UP THE NILE

An old trouble has been recurrent on the River Nile and is causing the Egyptian Government a great deal of anxiety. This trouble is the accumulation of a block of silt more than six miles long below the Great Dam, which is becoming a menace to navigation on the river. Silt is an accumulation of reeds, mostly papyrus, and what the Arabs call mother-of-wool, and the soil about their roots, torn in stormy weather, from the banks and lagoons of the river and piled up by some obstruction. The force of the current jams it very tightly together, and diving beneath makes the mass thicker and thicker. It has been known to reach a depth of twenty feet and to spread for twenty-five miles, and in the present instance it is again spreading rapidly. It is so strong that men can walk on it. Many lives have been lost in the silt, however, and once a small vessel was sucked right under it and lost. Sooner or later the floods have usually burst through it or around it, and it has been broken up into islets such as are formed by somewhat similar accumulations on the Lower Mississippi.

Roman centurions, sent by Nero to explore the Nile, were stopped by silt at just about the same spot where steamboat traffic is now being held up. Nearly sixty years ago Baker Pasha had to cut through sixty miles of silt. When the Derwishes revolted under the Mahdi they allowed the silt to accumulate to such an extent that after the reconquest of the Sudan it was exceedingly difficult in some places to discover the true channel of the river. The silt had to be cut up into blocks twelve feet square and hauled away by gunboats with hawsers and chains. Modern engineering has since, until just lately, kept the river fairly clear, which makes the present obstruction the more surprising. There have been schemes for making use of the silt for manufacturing purposes, but no doubt the same difficulty presents itself here as in using the water power available at the various cataracts. Both are too far removed from the places where they would be of use to make the plan worth while. Some day, no doubt, when the whole Nile Valley becomes an industrial belt from the Delta to Khartoum, use may be found for the silt, but in the meantime it is an intolerable nuisance and a menace to shipping on the great river.

PRINCE GEORGE AND H.M.S. DURBAN

Prince George, who is to join H.M.S. Durban at Esquimaux, will, when that vessel proceeds to the American and West Indies Station, be following in the footsteps of his father, King George. His Majesty was a midshipman and sub-lieutenant in H.M.S. Canada from May, 1883, and from May, 1890, he was given command of the gunboat Thrush. Prince George has already had twelve years' naval service. He entered Osborne as a cadet in 1916, and has been on ships attached to the Atlantic, Mediterranean and China Stations. A little over a year ago he qualified as an interpreter, and in October was appointed staff officer and interpreter to the new flagship Nelson. He is being appointed to the post of interpreter on H.M.S. Durban. After leaving here, early next month, the Durban will visit San Diego, California, remaining there for some days, and will pass through the Panama Canal on her way to the West Indies Station late in September.

MANUFACTURED IN THE COUNTRY

What shall we do to speed up employment? Mr. Bennett answers this question. Let us manufacture in the country the multitude of articles that we are now buying in the United States. That can be accomplished by a suitable re-adjustment of tariff, which would drive the foreign producer out of our market. The King Government, on the other hand, pretends that he must go after outside markets and deliver the home market to the outside producer, the most contentious of which is the American producer. The time may not be very far off when the people will be able to choose with discernment between these two policies. Indeed, the Hon. J. S. Martin, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, declares that it is between these two policies that the people of British Columbia made their choice at the polls last month.—A. Patrie.

THE HIDDEN HAND

In the British House of Commons on Tuesday, Mr. Churchill announced that a scheme will be put into effect by which 2,500 boys, 7,000 single men, 2,500 families and 2,000 single women will be sent to Canada from the British mining districts. Upon this migration the British Government calculates that in time the equivalent of $10,000,000 will be spent. As if to head off that movement of British workers to this country Mr. Heenan is reported to have said that British miners are almost exclusively coal miners and that at present there is a surplus of coal miners in Canada. The attitude of the King Government in regard to immigration from Britain is exciting interest both throughout Canada and the Mother Country between the different occupations of the soil and the workshop in such a way that they offer each other mutual support instead of damage.—La Presse.

THE BALANCE OF INDUSTRY

We must endeavor to maintain the balance as even as possible between industrial and agricultural activities in Canada. Industrialization to the limit is not to be desired and might even turn out to be a calamity. It is the duty of our governments and our educational establishments to make a fair distribution of labor between the different occupations of the soil and the workshop in such a way that they offer each other mutual support instead of damage.—La Presse.

That is the best government which desires to make the people happy, and knows how to make them happy.—Lord Macaulay.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

Miss Isabel MacDonald, eldest daughter of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, formerly Prime Minister and presently leader of the Socialist or Labor Party of Great Britain, is said to be an extremely clever young woman. She is undoubtedly a very sensible young woman, for she publicly declares that men and women are not equal and that there cannot be any comparison between them. But she qualifies those interesting statements by declaring that the women are just as important as the men. The latter statement no mere man will deny and no ordinary woman will contradict. There are extraordinary women, such as Miss MacDonald, who probably will both deny and contradict it. Both in speech and conduct Miss MacDonald has denied it.

The importance of the position of woman as a factor in human affairs cannot be established in a state of single blessedness, or celibacy. One married woman who is also a mother is of vastly more importance to the community than ten women who enter public life and elect to remain in a permanent state of maidenhood. That is why we regret to learn that it is the intention of Miss Isabel MacDonald to seek election to the Imperial Parliament and to become a public woman. Of course Miss MacDonald, being a sensible woman, does not intend to seek election to Parliament because she is ambitious and desirous of "making a red mark" in the roll which is the history of the world. She is going to do that in order that she may be in a better position to co-operate with men in improving and elevating public affairs.

Being Scotch (the Scottish women are said to make good and faithful wives and the most devoted of mothers), it is not possible that Miss MacDonald could better achieve the object of her life ambition by marrying a dour man, establishing a model home and rearing model children, instead of entering Parliament for the purpose of making a model institution? Parliament and Legislatures are what the Scotch sometimes call "kittie" institutions and very hard to reform, not to say elevate. There are women reformers and elevators in the Imperial Parliament, and they do not appear to have done much to improve or elevate it in its manners and morals the Imperial Parliament does not appear to be materially different from what it was in the bad old days when all its members were mere men.

There is a woman member of our Dominion Parliament. There has been a woman member in our Provincial Legislature. We are sure neither the Dominion Parliament nor the Provincial Legislature have been improved in manners or morals by the influence exercised by those members. Miss MacDonald certainly has not co-operated with the male members of our Parliament in their efforts to give a higher tone to public affairs. Her chief object in public life has been to compel the Government to do something it did not want to do because it did not think the public interest would be well served by doing it. Men politicians are sometimes sufficiently unscrupulous in their methods, but we have never heard or read of one publicly boasting that the way to get what you want out of a Government is to take it by the scruff of the neck, back it up against a wall and shake what you want out of it.

Public life may be all very well as a career for clever and ambitious women who have passed the prime of life and have fulfilled the ordained duties of womanhood such as Lady Astor and some others, but we do not believe that Parliament will provide a soul-satisfying career for young women of the type of Miss Isabel MacDonald. We hope at least that there is something better in store for them. We trust therefore that Miss Isabel will keep her eyes open as she passes through Canada. If she does that she will see many staid and strong young men, many of them with Celtic blood flowing in their veins, worthy of the notice of any ambitious young woman.

Once upon a time there was a gifted editor of one of Canada's principal newspapers who was on a tour of inspection of the coal fields of Ontario of Scottish parents and whose blood ran true and his heart was Highland although he had never seen the Hebrides. This editor admitted once that he became utterly irresponsible when he heard the music (or the sound) of the pipes. In the course of his duties as a journalist this man paid a visit to Scotland. He came back to Canada a sadder and wiser man. He was hospitably entertained wherever he went in the old home of his fathers. But one thing he saw there proved very depressing to his ardent spirits. It was that the finest specimens of Scottish manhood were not to be found in Scotland. The flower of the race had emigrated and become the makers of Canada. That editor's name was MacDonald. Something interesting may happen to the clan at present visiting Canada to confirm the view of the MacDonalds who paid a visit to Scotland. Canada needs settlers of that kind—and their descendants will not be Socialists.

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michalski

Comparisons are mighty things
For rapture or for woe,
They lend the passing hours wings
Or make them leaden, slow.

How splendid, then, that we, each one,
Choir make life glowing, gay,
By choice of wise comparison
Along the daily way!

True, if we only look at those
Who have no wish in vain,
Whose sunlit hours all disclose
What heights men can attain.

Then will our lot seem dark indeed,
To those who in their pressing need
For some small kindness yearn.
Brighter and brighter still will glow
Our pathway, near and far,
For then comparison will show
How doubly blest we are!

Letters to the Editor

Editor of the Colonist, please insert the following letter in your issue of August 11, 1928.

H.M.S. DURBAN'S VISIT
Sir,—Among the many organizations doing good work in Victoria, and doing it under the handicap of meagre means, none is more deserving of support than the Coast Seamen's Institute. Its efforts on behalf of seamen, light-house keepers, etc., are continuous and very praiseworthy, but lack of financial power limits them seriously.

Voluntary contributions enable the Institute to carry on its good work, tag days also. Tag days are, I know, anathema to many people who would put them in the category of things that "never would be missed." Still, they serve their purpose, of making people give even though they get no direct pleasure from so doing. Worse, they may suffer mental pain.

But there now comes an opportunity for 500 or so Victorians to do good work, to be of service and incidentally get real enjoyment from so doing. In addition, they will be showing appreciation of the efforts of some who are all too ready to see in Victoria and who will only be with us a short time.

The concert party of H.M.S. Durban, as it is called, is a most entertaining, the entire proceeds of which are to go in support of the Coast Seamen's Institute. Having the success of the entertainment and the welfare of the Institute both very much at heart, I should like to see the assistance and through the medium of your column to call the attention of Victorians to the fact that, by supporting the concert party, they will be doing three things: (1) helping the Coast Seamen's Institute, (2) showing appreciation of the efforts of our seamen, and (3) getting two or three hours' fun and pleasure out of it themselves. Surely a virtuous way of expending time. If they present themselves at the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, August 14, they will be able to "witness it all."

"BREAKING A TRADITION"

Sir,—Your article, "Breaking a Tradition," in The Daily Colonist of August 9, has been read by many people in this country and will win approval by most of them, whatever their political creed.

It is a deplorable lack of good taste for a politician of our country to go to another and endeavor to make capital for his party or in any way give political offence.

Since, however, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald appears so bent on telling us of the wonders which the future holds, when the Labor party gets into power, he might be kind enough to illuminate us on some of its efforts in the past—particularly so when it espoused the general strike in Great Britain in 1926—as a means of pushing itself into power, but quickly and expeditiously dropped it as soon as it became apparent that the spirit of the British people was utterly inimical to such tactics.

Perhaps, too, the British Labor leader will tell us whether, when he speaks of receiving the Russian Soviet Government with open arms the manner of his party away from the destinies of Great Britain, he overlooks the fact that the Soviet Government has since its inception, and is still, a party against the British and the British Empire in every part of the world—to say nothing of having confiscated and stolen untold millions of money and property from the British people.

CHARLES E. COLLARD, Lieut.-Colonel, Duncan, B.C., August 10, 1928.

SWIMMING TIMES

Sir,—Victoria's young swimmer, Tommy Wellburn, must be having a quiet smile to himself when he reads that he is credited with swimming one and one-half miles in thirty-two minutes in a lake. Now, if the course was in a running stream, or he was assisted by the current, well, that is all right. I don't know the distance across the lake, but what I do know is that there is a mistake somewhere as there is no swimmer in Canada who can do the distance in 32 minutes for one mile in dead water is 21 mins. 45 secs. held by Arne Borg, and the fastest Canadian mile swimmer does it in about 23 mins. 36 secs. Now reckon another half-mile and you will find even Arne Borg could hardly do it, and without exaggeration Borg could give the fastest Canadian swimming amateur or professional 200 yards easily in one minute. And that includes George Young, also; while he could give any British Columbia swimmer from three to four hundred yards in the same distance.

I am quite sure Tommy Wellburn does not want that kind of fame. He is a good swimmer, no mistake in that, but he himself won't claim to make anything like that time in dead water. I have not much time to spare to closely follow everything nor do I care much about writing to the press, but I have read so many glaring inaccuracies about sport lately that it's just as well to throw a monkey wrench in the machinery now and then. While I am on the subject I might say that four years ago last May I was in conversation with Arne Borg in San Francisco. He had just given an exhibition swim, an unofficial attempt on the quarter-mile world's record. Several people down there made fun of him with all kinds of uncomplimentary remarks, predicting that he would not win much in the U.S.A. I told him then and there that he was the fastest middle distance swimmer in the world and that he would prove it. I think he has proved it long ago. Such swimming as he is at present showing has never been seen before in the history of the world. People who are doing far less get more newspaper space.

In conclusion, let us recognize that each country has its share of geniuses at all sports, and also when reporting results of swims and other sports let us have something like accuracy. The general public may swallow some of these fantastical reports, but they don't fool old swimmers who know better. It would also be a lot more like real sport if we read a few less alibis and excuses from the Olympic games' correspondents.

THE SUMERIAN CIVILIZATION

Sir,—In a letter dated April 13 last, Colonel Eardley-Wilmot cited Professor C. Leonard Woolley, head of the expedition jointly carried out by the British Museum and the University Museum of Philadelphia at Ur as authority for the proposition that "nothing had been found anywhere that could possibly be older than 3500 B.C." and in face of my contradiction again repeated this. I accordingly endeavored to get in touch with Professor Woolley, whose reply I now have. He writes:

"British Museum, London, W.C.1. July 23, 1928.

"A. B. Sanders, Esq.
"Dear Sir,—Your letter of May 30 has been forwarded to me and I answer the points in it that concern myself; you are at liberty to use this answer for publication.

"The summaries of reports of my work in Mesopotamia, crediting me with the statement that 'these are the oldest finds discovered anywhere' and that 'nothing has been found anywhere that could possibly be older than 3500 B.C.' are a complete travesty of what I have said. From actual remains which I date to about 3500 B.C. I argue that in Southern Mesopotamia civilization goes back for many centuries at least behind that date. As such it is the oldest civilization of which anything is known as yet, i.e., we know of no other people who at so early a date had evolved what we today would call a civilized life, a life with organized agriculture, a city population, metal working, writing, art, formal religion, and systematized law. This may go back for all we know, to something like 4000 B.C., though up to the present such antiquity can only be deduced, and is not proved by material evidence. Behind this civilization came the Neolithic Age, of which in the lower valley of the Euphrates we have no remains other than traditional, and then the Paleolithic Age, of which remains are common in the upper desert and must go back to a time when the delta of the Euphrates and the Tigris was not yet formed. That the civilization of Sumer is older than the civilization of Egypt, which in its turn was preceded by a barbarous prehistoric and prehistoric of incalculable antiquity, is a proposition having nothing whatever to do with the question of human origins. "Human history, as distinct from the history of civilization, goes back very far, and the anthropologist can fairly reckon in thousands of years where the historian must be content with hundreds. 4000 B.C., marking the beginning of civilization properly so called, would only mark the beginning of the modern phase in man's evolution. To assert that my archaeological reports imply a denial of the immeasurable antiquity of palaeolithic man is deliberately dishonest.

"Yours faithfully,
"C. Leonard Woolley."

In view of Professor Woolley's eminence, and of the manner in which his views have been misrepresented, and in common fairness to him, I must ask you to give publicity to his reply.

PRISON SENTENCE GIVEN STEINBURG

Vancouver Man Is Found Guilty of Obtaining Money Here Under False Pretences

Found guilty of obtaining money by false pretences from a local merchant, James S. Steinburg, of 1670 Haro Street, Vancouver, was sentenced in the city police court yesterday morning to three months in prison.

The case had been remanded until the arrival of two witnesses from Vancouver, who testified for the prosecution. One was Mr. George Bell, assistant accountant at the main branch of the Royal Bank of Canada in Vancouver. He testified that Steinburg had not had the money in the bank to cover a $900 cheque he issued to Mr. Hugh McKenzie of Victoria. At no time since he opened a savings account had he had a balance to cover that amount.

The other witness was Mr. Harry Herman, also of Vancouver, who stated that Steinburg was not in his employ at the time he cashed the cheque with Mr. McKenzie. The accused had not been in his employ since February.

Mr. W. H. Haldane, counsel for the defendant, pleaded for leniency, saying that the accused was married and had not previously been convicted, and that he had no intention in his mind at the time of cashing the cheque or defrauding the merchant.

SHOW BETTERMENT IN SINKING FUNDS

Report of Inspector of B.C. Municipalities Estimates 449,209 Live in Organized Communities

The Inspector of B.C. Municipalities, Mr. R. Baird, in his annual report places the taxable value of land within municipalities at an assessed value of $302,880,841, taxable improvements at $306,802,860, land and improvements exempt from taxation at $25,745,240.

With an estimated population of 49,209, municipalities cover an area of 949,395 acres.

The assets of British Columbia municipalities in land and improvements total $693,437,951, while their liabilities amount to $113,430,018. The assets are made up of all kinds of land and improvements, whether taxable or exempt from taxation, while the liabilities are composed of very kind of bonded and current debt, with sinking funds deducted.

A marked improvement in the sinking funds of municipalities is evident. A shortage of $1,904,753 in the sinking funds of certain municipalities at the end of 1926 was cut in 1927 to $1,609,184. In the same period other municipalities increased their surplus sinking funds over legal requirements from $370,387 to $406,705.

Tax arrears at the end of 1927 amounted to $3,631,703, as compared with $3,936,944 in 1926 and $12,085,983 in 1919.

Altogether municipalities enjoyed revenue of $25,141,571 last year, made up of taxes, Government grants and all other receipts. Expenditures, however, totaled $25,133,791.

The figures on expenditures shows an interest on debentures, exclusive of schools and public utilities, absorbed $3,108,089, sinking funds and instalments on the principal of debentures, $1,555,197, roads and streets, $2,635,744, street lighting, $388,909, parks, $317,360, sewers, $46,521, fire protection, $1,082,607, public health, $140,252, administration of justice, $1,160,757, schools, including interest and sinking fund payments, $6,759,299; donations and

CONSERVATIVES OF ESQUIMALT PLAN FOR PICNIC

The Esquimalt Conservatives will hold their annual picnic on August 22, at Saxe Point, at the foot of Fraser Street. The event is to be made a specially attractive one this year, and will include a long list of sport events.

In this connection there will be special interest attaching to the competition for the Lang Trophy to be competed for by tug-of-war teams. This was won by the Victoria city police team last year, and it is expected that they will defend the title again this year. A civilian team is entering from Esquimalt and it is anticipated that there will be teams representing both the Army and the Navy in the competition.

In addition to the sport events, there will be a programme of short speeches. Hon. S. P. Tolmie, the leader of the party, will address the gathering, as well as Mr. R. H. Pooley, the member-elect for the district of Esquimalt.

Others who will be invited to attend will be the members elected for the City of Victoria in the provincial elections, as well as those from the neighboring ridings on the Island. The members of the House of Commons in the district and other prominent Conservatives will also be invited to be present.

JUDGE ADVOCATES STERILIZATION LAW

WINNIPEG, Aug. 10.—Predicting that Manitoba will have to enact a sterilization law, and advocating the appointment of a minister of public morals, Judge P. A. B. Hamilton, of the Winnipeg Juvenile Court, dealt with the case of the "juvenile delinquent" in an address to a conference of ministers here last night.

The problem arising from moral degenerates or mental defectives in the Province of Manitoba was, in Judge Hamilton's opinion, the most serious, and he added, sterilization is the only remedy for the situation.

SCHOOL EXHIBITS FOR COMING FAIR

Classes Will Give Opportunity for Children of All Ages—Work Outlined

School exhibits, always popular with crowds attending the Fall Fair, will again be featured at the provincial exhibition, opening at the Willows August 20.

These classes are open to children of British Columbia, but at the Victoria Fair mainly represent the work of local scholars. Most of the schools in the city will be represented.

Tote of the kindergarten, to the advanced student of seventeen years are invited to enter. Penmanship, brushwork, drawing and map drawing work will be submitted by scholars from ten to seventeen years of age.

Raffa work and clay modeling for children from six years to ten years will be shown.

Manual training exhibits include drawing, models and woodwork. There will be a variety of miscellaneous classes. Girls will test their skill by competition in needlework and cooking. An answer to the oft-made claim that girls are taught nothing useful in this direction will be given by the exhibits. They will show their skill in sock making, making middy blouses, nightdresses and other useful articles. Exhibits will also demonstrate their skill in bread making and bottling fruit.

National Board Comments Upon Action Here

Most important of the subjects raised at the convention of the Pacific Northwest Real Estate Association here last month was that of the proposed formation of a property owners' division within local real estate boards.

Announcement is made in the bulletin of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, in commenting on the meeting here, that a similar study is now being made by the national association as to more direct co-operation between property owners and member boards of the association in matters of common local concern, as well as those affecting state and national interests.

World-Famous Stories

THE ATHEIST'S MASS
 By HONORE DE BALZAC

(Honoré de Balzac, 1799-1850, was a French novelist. His stories are known especially in the group called "The Human Comedy.")

Dr. Despleins was one of the most famous surgeons in France during his lifetime. He early took a young physician, by name Blanchon, under his wing and made him, too, a famous doctor. For Despleins was in a position to make a man famous merely by befriending him.

But Dr. Despleins had not always been wealthy and famous. He had known poverty and obscurity. It had been a terribly hard fight for him to make his way in his profession—first of all to get his medical education and then to win a practice. And he was not only a surgeon—he was also a confirmed, incurable atheist.

Dr. Despleins was an atheist without feeling or pity for angels, precisely because an angel could offer no resistance to the surgeon's knife and could have neither fatigues nor gastritis. His views were known to his disciples, Blanchon, for Blanchon knew everything about his master. They had become not only co-workers, but intimate friends. They had no secrets from each other.

That was why Blanchon was in for the surprise of his life one day. He happened to mention casually that a certain doctor, a certain Dr. Despleins, was seriously ill. Dr. Despleins, busy as he was, left all his patients to attend this poor man, poverty-stricken and alone. Blanchon noticed that later Dr. Despleins had a particular weakness for water carriers. Of course, Dr. Despleins was known to be eccentric. In fact, he made something of a fetish of it, and rather took pride in it. But the real surprise, and something which seemed in a man of such firm convictions as those of Dr. Despleins, to be more than eccentricity, came years later.

Blanchon was crossing La Place St. Sulpice, and caught sight of his master going into church. Further, Dr. Despleins—who always rode—was on foot. And he seemed to be sneaking along, as though there was reason for stealth.

Naturally curious, and knowing how thoroughly an atheist Dr. Despleins was, Blanchon slipped into the church. He was considerably surprised to see his master actually on his knees in the chapel of the Virgin, at which he was hearing a mass. He even paid for the expenses of the ceremony, not liking to be seen spying. Blanchon went away, though much puzzled.

Dr. Despleins never mentioned the incident to Blanchon, and after a time it faded in the young man's memory. But a year or two later he saw the doctor happen again—Dr. Despleins, the atheist, went to mass. Still later, another doctor, who had also happened to see Dr. Despleins go into church, and who also knew his opinions, asked him about it.

"I went there to see a priest with a sore knee," said the famous surgeon.

The reply satisfied the doctor, but not Blanchon. He was now a physician, and he was determined to watch Despleins. He remembered the date on which Despleins had gone to mass twice before, and planned to be at the church the following year at the same time.

Sure enough, Dr. Despleins was there. Again he heard his mass at

Woodland Cottage Is a Very Picturesque Retreat

By MRS. N. deB. SHAW

We thought we had found a fairy cottage. It was so precisely like the secret little houses that one sees in old-fashioned books of fairy tales. One comes upon it so suddenly. First there is the thick, still forest. Nothing but forest! And then, as if it had sprung up out of the ground, there is a perfect little house, in a perfect little garden, and the entrance is by a secret path.

We had visited Hatley Park, the stately house, the wide-spread garden. We had partaken of tea on the terrace with its tiled floor, its roses and fuschias in tall pots, its striped awnings protecting from the sun and wind. We had looked with ecstasy on the wonderful view, the sun-drenched, silver sea, the purple velvet of the Sooke Hills. Somebody said: "Have you seen the Glen garden?"

We had not. We had seen so much garden that it seemed impossible that there should be more. But there was. We went to the Glen garden, and found a perfect little house, in a perfect little garden, and the entrance is by a secret path.

Trading basis on the Victoria produce market at the midweek was steady to easier, with supplies continuing at the high level that has ruled the local centre for the past several weeks. Buying was easily done, however, as the supplies are plentiful, and the receipts are only on fully matured offerings.

Receipts of cantaloupes were heavier and prices easier, with bulk sales now at $3.25 for 45's and $2.90 for 36's. There was a drop in 45's of fifty cents, while 36's decreased sixty cents per crate. Offerings of local and outside tomatoes are being made more freely, and wholesalers report that it is difficult to hold value at a profitable basis for growers. New potatoes are fairly steady, with average sales locally at $1.40 per sack on best offerings. With the Australian and Japan onions off the market, the undertone is slightly stronger, but with new consignments of Walla Walla onions, the wholesalers are able to supply the demand. Walla Walla brand are selling at $2.25 per sack. The supply of golden corn is rapidly increasing, selling to the retailers at twenty-five cents a dozen. Peach values held steady, but the preserving kind reduced ten cents per crate and are selling at $1.50 a crate. Preserving apricots are off the market. California grapefruit is disposed of from $7.00 to $7.75 per crate, while bananas decreased to six cents per pound. Celery from Imperial Valley arrived yesterday and sold from $4.75 to $5.00 a crate.

Both butter and eggs maintained a firm tone, with a few of the local trade predicting higher prices on the market, to become effective within the immediate future. Demand is brisk for butter and all grades are moving fast.

The only changes noticed in the meat section were of bacon and ham. Bacon increased from thirty-seven to forty-three cents a pound to thirty-eight and forty-five cents, with ham from thirty and thirty-two cents to thirty-one and thirty-four cents a pound.

BROOKS MOTORS

TORONTO, Aug. 10.—Petitions for the winding up of Brooks Steam Motors, Ltd., and its subsidiaries, have been filed at Osgoode Hall by a local shareholder.

On opening the front door one steps into the living-room. It is furnished with a small chesterfield, diminutive armchairs, a little girl's writing desk. Blue curtains are at the windows and cushions to match them scattered about. The most charming feature of the room is a cobblestone fireplace with a fender seat and mantel. Off the dining bedroom is a completely equipped bathroom in the traditional blue and white. There is a blue silk cover on the bed in the petite chamber, toning in with figured curtains and upholstered wicker chairs.

The kitchen would delight the heart of any small housewife, be she grow-up or not, for there is everything that one needs for cooking and serving the neatest sort of plumage arrangements and a dresser full of dishes.

On the back veranda there are the coolers. In fact, nothing has been forgotten to make it complete. Even to the vases with fresh flowers scattered throughout the house.

One would like to finish this by saying that the place is all in readiness for some happy child who is expected to come and play there.

Your Home and You

By BETSY CALLISTER

THE newest compacts have nothing whatever to do with powdering the nose. In fact there is nothing cosmetic about them. They consist of sets of glass, pottery or enamel containers to be used in the refrigerator. And they are called "compacts" because they are compact—made with straight sides, often with rounded corners, and sometimes designed to be set one on top of the other. With a complete supply of such compacts it is possible to get twice as much in the refrigerator as with the usual miscellaneous set of spreading bowls, shallow trays, paper bags and boxes.

One enamel compact set consists of two oblong containers that fit one on top of the other and two smaller dishes which, when placed across the top container fit precisely, providing a cover and room for two more sorts of food. Then there are deep glass dishes, with covers, suitable for butter, cheese, etc.—which should be kept strictly to themselves.

You may be able to afford this up-to-date sort of refrigerator equipment. If not, you may often find dishes and containers of a less expensive sort that will answer the purpose. Remember that spreading or bulking dishes are never desirable for refrigerator use. A perfectly straight jug, not too high to go between the shelves of your refrigerator, is excellent for storing soup.

cold drinks and other liquids. You may buy a straight-sided glass butter dish—large enough to contain a pound of butter—for as little as ten cents. Get two or three of these, because they are useful for holding small amounts of meat, cheese and other foods that ought to be kept well covered.

Remember that food should always be taken from the paper in which it is bought before putting in the refrigerator. Paper is a non-conductor of heat. It tends to keep the heat in and thus the process of chilling in the refrigerator is slower than it would be in a glass or enamel dish. Also, paper gets damp and soggy and, of course, it has been handled and exposed to dust and is really not fit to put in your refrigerator at all.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The raw sugar market was steady early today. No sales were reported, but there appeared to be buyers at last-paid prices of 4.11 for spot, duty paid, with holders asking 4.14.

The refined sugar market was unchanged at 55 for fine granulated. Withdrawals on old contracts were liberal, but new business was light with some second-hand selling at 55.21-2.

SHADOW SPARK IN SWEET STABLEMATE

CLARK ENTRY AGAIN COMES FROM BEHIND TO TAKE FINE RACE

Shadow Spark Duplicates Feat of Bernice in Seventh Race at Colwood by Coming From Last Position to Win After Great Stretch Display—Jockey Peake Fined $50

Large Fields Help Betting as Meet At Mile Track Proceeds; Prices Longer

Eating dust in the early racing appears to be the liking or delirium of Dr. Clark's string of thoroughbreds, for yesterday his second winner at the Colwood mile track in successive days came from behind after trailing the rest of the field until the stretch to win going away. Thursday it was Bernice who closed a gap as long as a city block and won, and yesterday it was Shadow Spark who came out of the clouds to beat out Frederick Raphael in the last and best race of the card.

Larger fields added more interest than on the opening card, and betting was stimulated considerably. Once again, the machines worked to perfection, and the lines were kept moving along quickly. Prices were better than on Thursday, three of the winners distributing double-barreled figures.

Judge Rothert is determined to keep racing here as clean as possible and yesterday assessed Jockey Peake $50 for his rough riding on Chatter Boy in the third race. It was during this event that played away one of the public choices, was interfered with while running strongly, and the presiding steward questioned Peake about the occurrence, with the result that the boy's paycheck will be minus half a hundred when it arrives.

GOOD CARD TODAY
Today should be the best of the meet so far. A well-balanced card with plenty of entries has been arranged and some great finishes are expected. The half-holiday in most sections is expected to bring out a large crowd.

Rag Bag, the public choice in the opening event, left no doubt as to which was the best performer in the field, and he won as his jockey pleased, and with much space separating him from Heather Leighton, who headed out Lady Barrett for second money. Many figured De Ford might bring Volney home, but the best he could do was to get in fourth place.

The second race brought together four Western-bred two-year-olds in a three-and-a-half-furlong sprint. Lady Goldtrotter owned by M. Smith and bred and raised here, showed plenty of speed and won as her rider pleased. Jack Beaman was easily second best. Somer's Star finished third.

GIVEN STRONG RIDE
Peake gave Chatter Boy a strong ride in winning the third event. After laying back until the last eighth, Peake broke through the overhauled Kilbourns under heavy punishment, and won from the latter by a head. Miss Jennings set the pace for a half-mile, and Chatter Boy came along strongly to get third money. Paved Way was fancied in some quarters, but was pinched off in the first turn and lost his chance. Chatter Boy returned $27.25 straight, the longest price of the day.

Lucky Lou, ably piloted by Jockey Pales, took a hard decision from Akhamouk in the fourth. The latter set all the early racing, but was tiring at the wire, and just fell short of Lucky Lou in a game stretch duel. Beauty Boy just had enough to stay off the challenge of Kid North and take show money. Harry T. was given a poor ride by Jackson.

Dorothy Drew was much the best in the fifth, and after taking command at the half was never in danger. North Shore, the place horse, closed much ground to take second place by a nose from Roan Wolf. The latter had no excuses. Starter Neary got the points away in a brilliant moving start in this race.

Another spectacular moving start was furnished in the sixth when Starter Neary got the points away in a brilliant moving start in this race. With the field in a perfect line, Miss Berkeley and Kinetic raced like a team until the last eighth when the former moved forward to win by a length. Skootin took third money and was closing fast. Jago was running strongly at the wire.

HAVEN TOO SMART
Shadow Spark lapped up much dust in the last event, but like his stablemate, Bernice E. did on Tuesday, closed with a tremendous burst of speed to overtake one after the other and win the finest race of the day by a head from Frederick Raphael. Scarcely a length separated the first four horses, the French Canadian-bred two-year-olds, three and one-half furlongs (Pales).
Time, 1:04.15. Also ran: Valley, Don, Buck Terror, Little Rose, Jack, Little Goldtrotter. (Pales).
Second race—Purse, $300. Western Canadian-bred two-year-olds, three and one-half furlongs (Pales).
Time, 1:02.15. Also ran: Spanish Lady, Jack Beaman. (Pales).
Third race—Purse, $300. Western Canadian-bred two-year-olds, three and one-half furlongs (Pales).
Time, 1:02.15. Also ran: Spanish Lady, Jack Beaman. (Pales).
Fourth race—Purse, $300. Western Canadian-bred two-year-olds, three and one-half furlongs (Pales).
Time, 1:02.15. Also ran: Spanish Lady, Jack Beaman. (Pales).

STROKE BACKING
McKee will have a strong team behind him. The visitors are one of the heavy slugging aggregations in the Island League, which means that Forbes will have to work all of the way to hold them in check.

Added interest will be taken in the game due to the fact that two brothers, John Cummins and Herb Cummins, will be playing second sack for the visiting and local teams respectively.

The teams will be as follows:
Victoria Capitals—Downey, C. McKee, P. Dixon, B. J. Cummins, B. Harris, B. Hunsley, M. Millard, R. Robinson, C. and Stant, I.
Victoria Capitals—Moore, C. Forbes, P. Webster, L. Herb Cummins, B. Munis, B. McKenna, S. Ostman, R. Dunn, C. and Wash-ter, I.

FIELDING TO GET BIG TEST THIS EVENING

Clever Local Boxer Will Take On Shifty Stoker Lake, of H.M.S. Durban, in Main Event

STRONG SUPPORTING CARD IS ARRANGED

It looks as if the programme of bouts which Joe Bayley is offering tonight at the Tillicum Club quarters on Broad Street, will be one of the finest that has ever been offered for the approval of the fans in this city for some time.

All of the boxers have appeared locally, consequently the outcome of the main event is equally divided. Stoker Lake has a host of admirers who figure that he will give Fielding an artistic boxing lesson, while, on the other hand, quite a number of the fans contend that Fielding's aggressive, boring-in type of milling, coupled with his punishing snappy punches to the head and body will wear the sailor down and that he will stave Lake away with a knockout in the latter rounds of the fight.

Fielding is unquestionably tackling a top notcher, and if he emerges victoriously from the bout he will be ready to meet the best boys at his weight on the Coast. No announcement has been made as yet by Promoter Bayley as to the officials who will handle the bouts. It is hoped that great care will be taken to see that competent persons are selected, so that correct decisions are given.

The balance of the card looks particularly good. The local contestants are first class battlers, who can be depended upon to give the best they have in them, and as the H.M.S. Durban entries claim to be in top notch condition, some fine bouts should be witnessed.

The first bout will start at 8:30 sharp and the programme follows:
Four rounds, 135 pounds—Tim Jennings, R.G.N., vs. Stoker Worthington, H.M.S. Durban.
Four rounds, 126 pounds—Tim Keist, Victoria, vs. Stoker Thomas, H.M.S. Durban.

Four rounds, 118 pounds—Albie Davies, Victoria, vs. A. B. Webster, H.M.S. Durban.
Four rounds, 122 pounds—Danny Pastore, Victoria, vs. Stoker Thomas, H.M.S. Durban.

Main event, 130 pounds, ten rounds—Tommy Fielding, Victoria, vs. Stoker Percy Lake, H.M.S. Durban.

Island Ball Play-Offs Will Open Here Today
Victoria Capitals, champions of the southern section of the Vancouver Island baseball League, and Courtney, winners of the northern section, will clash at the Royal Athletic Park today at 3 o'clock, in the first game of the play-off series to decide the Island champions. The second game will be played at Courtney on August 19 and a third, if necessary, at Nanaimo.

Norm Forbes, who is considered the star twirler in the Capitals' camp, has been selected to go to the mound in this important struggle. Forbes has plenty of stuff, which, coupled with his usual smoke, should prove a source of worry to the visiting sluggers. Forbes is still suffering from the 5-0 defeat that Courtney chalked up against him in his last appearance, and today he will be out for a win which will also be revenge for his previous setback.

McKee will go to the hillcock in opposition to Forbes. The Post-Island twirler shutout the Capitals in their last visit to Courtney, and will be out today to make it two straight.

ART (DOC) WEBSTER
Claver back of the Capitals has been who will be in action this afternoon at the Royal Athletic Park. Webster is one of the best first basemen in the city, and in addition, has a good batting eye.

Dixon, B. J. Cummins, B. Harris, B. Hunsley, M. Millard, R. Robinson, C. and Stant, I. Victoria Capitals—Moore, C. Forbes, P. Webster, L. Herb Cummins, B. Munis, B. McKenna, S. Ostman, R. Dunn, C. and Wash-ter, I.

INTERNATIONAL LACROSSE GAME CARDED TODAY

Seattle Stickhandlers Will Battle C.P.S. at the Royal Athletic Park at 6:15 o'clock

SQUADS WILL BE AT FULL STRENGTH

In an international lacrosse battle slated for tonight at 6:15 o'clock at the Royal Athletic Park, Seattle's band of stickhandlers will meet the Canadian Puget Sound aggregation. The visitors are carrying a speedy aggregation, which includes a number of younger players and a sprinkling of veterans, who are able to keep the younger players on the alert. Derouche, who minds the net for the Seattle team, and Dembrach, who will perform at cover point, are rated as two of the finest players in the Sound city.

B.C. Cricketers Win Western Honors for Fourth Year in Row

Province Representatives Make Clean Sweep of Series With Prairie Teams to Retain Dingwall Trophy—Manitoba Beats Alberta

WINNIPEG, Aug. 10.—By defeating Saskatchewan and gaining their fifth victory in succession, cricketers of British Columbia today for the fourth consecutive year won the Dingwall trophy, emblematic of the Western Canada Cricket Association tournament championship. The Coast players defeated the Saskatchewan representatives by a margin of 87 runs, the final score reading 150 to 63.

Manitoba scored a victory over Alberta of 59 runs, the scores being 126 to 67.

Play continues Saturday, but the results will have no bearing on British Columbia's standing.

At the end of play today the standing was:

Team	Won	Lost
British Columbia	5	0
Saskatchewan	2	3
Manitoba	2	3
Alberta	1	1

The cricket throughout the day was played listlessly, giving the spectators very little to enthuse over.

Score is 131 to 128 in the Capital City Game Played at Beacon Hill Greens Yesterday

RINK FINAL IS SET FOR TODAY

Visiting bowlers carried off the honors in the feature event of the present open tournament in progress on local greens last night, when seven rinks of visitors defeated seven local rinks in the Capital City match at the Victoria Lawn Bowling Club greens at Beacon Hill.

Only three local rinks, those skippered by O. Sherwood, R. Tutill and W. Edgecombe, were successful in defeating the visitors.

Edgecombe's rink had a one-point margin of victory over a rink skippered by E. Hopper, while J. Renfrew's rink lost by a lone point to

J. Jenkinson, the score being 17-16. One of the largest crowds in the history of lawn bowling in the Capital City witnessed the games. Scores follow:

The rink final between Sherwood, of Victoria, and Jenkinson, of the Terminal City Club, will be played at Beacon Hill today at 9:30 o'clock, while an exhibition game between Chapman, of Lethbridge, and Hopper, of Stanley Park, will be played at the same time for the third time.

Johnston, of Burnside, and Dawson and Blundell, of Victoria.

In the trios the visitors are still in the running and their colors will be carried today by Todd, MacIntosh and Mrs. Whyte, of Vancouver, against a local trio. This team defeated Renfrew, Dorrell and Mrs. McKeech, of Victoria, in one of the semi-finals played yesterday. In the other semi-final, R. Wilson, G. Dixon and Mrs. Hancock defeated Harry Wright, H. Parker and Mrs. Wright. The final is slated for 5 o'clock today at Burnside.

Fighting Spirit of Ringsiders Moves Judges at Amsterdam to Change Verdict When American Loses

CHANGE IN CALL IS BOOED LOUDLY

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 10.—The fighting spirit of the ringside fans at the Olympic boxing events tonight made the action in the ring in the semi-final bout look like second-rate performances. Not since the Olympics started have such scenes been witnessed in the Olympic fighting pavilion.

The uproar started when John L. Daley, of Waltham, Mass., American heavyweight entry, was declared the loser in a bout with Isaacs, of tion." This was unanimously accepted.

A provisional board of officers was then elected. George B. Woods, Toronto, was elected president; Harold Radcliffe, Vancouver, secretary-treasurer, and the following members chosen: British Columbia, M. M. Greaves, Vancouver, Alberta, A. C. T. Booth, Calgary; Saskatchewan, Samuel Grant, Regina; Manitoba, W. Stewart, Winnipeg.

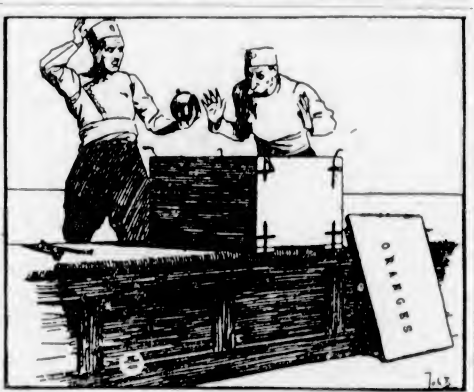

No Eastern executive officers were elected, the choice being left to the respective clubs of Ontario and Quebec.

SOUTHAMPTON, L.I., Aug. 10.—The Meadow Club's invitation tennis singles championship, held by "Big Bill" Tilden, will go to Texas or New Jersey.

The American rooters rushed into the aisles and tried to crowd up to the ring, and for a while it looked as if there would be a free-for-all between the Dutch police, who were called to quell the disturbance, and the American rooters.

Meanwhile the judges reversed the decision, announcing that they had made a mistake. This sent the British fans and others who favored the South African into a counter-demonstration.

Dominion Cricket Body to Be Formed

CANNIBALS HAVE IRRIGATION WORKS

SYDNEY, N.S.W., AUG. 10.—A survival of an ancient civilization co-existent with the lowest cannibalism, has been made by a patrol officer visiting the Wampit watershed, in New Guinea.

The cannibals, who had never seen firearms, had just finished a feast on bodies after a tribal war. They had developed a system of terraced irrigation along the lines of interlocked bamboo pipes and aqueducts for the native gardens, which are 4,000 feet above sea level.

Monday—Breakfast: Cottage cheese, Melba toast, sliced pineapple. Lunch: Grapes as desired. Dinner: Boiled fresh tongue, buttered vegetables, celery, Jello or Jell-Well with cream.

Tuesday—Breakfast: French omelette, toasted triscuit, stewed prunes. Lunch: Watermelon as desired. Dinner: Salisbury steak, cooked spinach, McCoy's baked pears.

Wednesday—Breakfast: Whole wheat-raised muffins, crisp bacon. Lunch: Ice cream with berries. Dinner: Leg of mutton, cooked string beans, salad of grated raw carrots on lettuce, pineapple whip.

Thursday—Breakfast: Poached egg on Melba toast, stewed apricots. Lunch: Pipe plums as desired. Dinner: Roast pork, cooked spinach, summer squash, celery and ripe olives, baked apple.

Friday—Breakfast: Re-toasted breakfast food, with milk or cream (no sugar), stewed peaches. Lunch: Melon as desired. Dinner: Baked sea bass, cooked string beans, egg, plant, salad of sliced tomatoes, plain Jello.

Saturday—Breakfast: French omelette, Melba toast, baked apple. Lunch: Ice cream with a fresh acid fruit. Dinner: Stuffed and rolled round steak, head lettuce, prune whip.

"Wholewheat-Raisin Muffins"—To a whole beaten egg add one cupful of sweet milk. Stir in one cupful of whole wheat flour and beat until smooth, then add a half cupful of the whole wheat flour into which has been sifted one level teaspoonful of baking powder. Next add a half cup of seedless raisins which have been slightly floured. Mix thoroughly and bake in muffin tin in a moderately hot oven until brown. The quantity makes about eight muffins.

Correspondents wishing to communicate with Dr. McCoy are advised that his address is Builders Exchange Building, Los Angeles, California, U.S.A.

At The Playhouses Group Leader Comes of Noted Political Family

COLISEUM A reproduction of a theatre court trial in Washington, based on the story of a judge, was filmed as a startling detail in John Gilbert's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle, "Man, Woman and Sin," showing for the last time today at the Coliseum. It is a vivid story of newspaperdom in Washington, much of it filmed at the national capital. Monta Bell directed the new play, in which Jeanne Eagels, Charles K. French, Marc McDermott, Gladys Brockwell and others of note appear.

PLAYHOUSE A story of a distinctly modern girl, without the slightest trace of the "flapper" formula is the novel and interesting showing at the Playhouse Theatre for the last time today in "The Crystal Cup," the first National picture, with Jack Mulhall and Dorothy Mackall. The picture, produced by Henry Hobart, is adapted from the novel of the same name by Gertrude Atherton.

DOMINION Dolores Del Rio has been honored by her compatriots with a gold medal in recognition of her success on the screen. The medal was presented to Miss Del Rio by the Mexican consul at Los Angeles recently during a festive gathering of Spanish-speaking peoples. More than 10,000 Mexicans and Spaniards attended the ceremonies, and Senora Del Rio appeared in person and addressed the throng in her native tongue. The star's latest picture, "Ramona," a classic romance of early California, is now showing at the Dominion Theatre.

CAPITOL One of the most important screen roles of the year is played by Bodil Rosing in "The Wheel of Chance," First National's current picture. The picture, starring Rosing, now showing at the Capitol Theatre. Miss Rosing enacts the part of Sara Turkel, the wonderful mother of the twin sons, Nikolai and Schmulka, both parts played by Barthelmess. She is a noted Danish actress and is well known in Copenhagen and other leading European cities.

COLUMBIA "The Warning," showing at the Columbia Theatre, relates the adventures of a girl detective in the Hong Kong waterfront. The plot affords an exceptionally fine role for Jack Holt, who is given opportunity to use his fists and stage some thrilling rescue. Dorothy Revier is well cast as the girl detective, Frank Lackteen, Pat Harmon, Eugene Strong, George Kuwa and Norman Trevor complete the exceptionally fine cast.

VARIETY Ten rounds of steady theatre solid fighting are shown in the Tunney-Heeney fight film, now showing at the Variety Theatre. The large audiences have followed the rounds with breathless interest, and Tunney's last fight, without doubt, established him as a great champion for all time. Tunney seems never greatly perturbed by the methods and watching the picture, it seems quite possible these were not the best to use against a great ring craftsman like Tunney. But none watching the fight can deny Heeney's high courage. It is a great picture of a great fight, and the tenth and eleventh rounds in slow motion are an interesting feature.

Nurse Cavell Film
No Partisan, Critic
Of London News Says

London reports have told of the storm raised over the picture "Dawn," this film, to be shown for the first time in British Columbia at the Coliseum, tells the story of Edith Cavell's later days. E. A. Baughman, critic of The Daily News, writes: "I must confess I went to see 'Dawn' with considerable doubt. It had seemed to me that no good could come from raking the ashes of past tragedies. It also seemed to me that there was something ghoulish in this reconstruction of a recent tragedy. Nothing to be sacred to the film! The private view of 'Dawn' dispelled all my doubts. In the first place Sybil Thorndike has made a most dignified figure of Nurse Cavell. She is a grey-eyed, commanding woman, obsessed with the idea of suffering, and full of a tenderness toward the wounded and those in danger of their life, which never once becomes sentimental. The very sentry at the door of Nurse Cavell's cell is sympathetic. He evidently admires the heroine who has done so much for her countrymen and for his own, for that matter. And that brings me to the execution itself. It has been vehemently denied that any member of the firing party refused to shoot, or that he was shot by his own officer for refusing to do his duty. But that is unquestionably a legend in the soldier's hall, where photographs of the soldier have been publicly sold."

THRILL OF FLYING

STUDENT'S REWARD
After Few Hours of Confusion Tyro Gets "Feel" of Controls and Fun Starts

By DON BROWN
(Copyright by North American Newspaper Alliance)

NEWARK, N.J., AUG. 10.—It's an experience worth working for, the thrill of learning to control an airplane yourself.

After the first uncertain hours of dual instruction, you suddenly realize that you can guide this roaring, dynamic contrivance of wood and silvered cloth through the rackless air and around turns and figure-eights in a fashion not too wobbly. It's a grand feeling.

I got to this point today and I found it worth the previous flying hours of uncertainty and confusion, when the earth seemed to be clattering in my ears and no clear thoughts in my head as I held on to the control stick while we roared about over the Jersey meadows.

Then the instructor pilot continually corrected with his set of the double controls the too timid or too jerky movements I made.

When I was going through that the earth seemed to be clattering under me in a dizzy way which had no relation to the plane I was flying.

"Today, I began to 'get the feel' of the controls and turned the plane about in simple manoeuvres—at a safe altitude, so the instructor would have time to correct any mistakes I made before we hit the ground."

Things were getting more comfortable up there for both me and the instructor.

It was a little start like a baby's first steps, as far as getting to be a pilot is concerned. But it was certainly an improvement over the first few hours of the course, when I was down with the conviction that I can learn to fly.

In a way it's like learning to write with a typewriter or getting the signal on a football team. It comes awkwardly enough at first and you have to do a lot of slow, heavy thinking. But after you get enough practice, the words you think before your fingers and on to the sheet without any effort on your part.

If it is football, the whole groups of numbers which you formerly had to think about hard have a clear meaning to you the instant they are uttered.

MISTAKES MORE SERIOUS
The parallel is pretty close in learning to fly except that flying is complicated by the fact that mistakes in the air may have much more serious results.

In your first instruction in a plane you hardly feel that you are sliding over this way or that, or that the machine is a noisy, vibrating what would be a fatal dive if it were not corrected. The plane seems to be steady all the time. It appears that only the earth is swinging about. You have to gather from the way the horizon behaves just what the plane is doing. After you figure that out, you must think which way you must move the stick and rudder bars to correct it. But, as you get a little practice, all this thinking becomes more automatic, you begin to do what is needed smoothly and quickly.

The plane feels really alive under your touch. You have time to look out past the shiny silver wings and down on the clear-cut brightly colored patchwork landscape below and you're not sorry you started to learn to fly.

Tomorrow I am going to try my first "stunt" flying. I will climb the plane so steeply that it loses flying speed and begins to fall. Then I must try to recover from the fall and fly straight again before we hit the ground.

Lord Peel, Who Will Head British Parliamentary Delegation to Canada, Is Son of Former Speaker of British House of Commons

The British Parliamentary party due here on September 11 will be headed by Viscount Peel, first Viscount of Peel, who was a member of the House of Commons for 20 years, and in the same year was elected to the London County Council, and eight years later became the leader of the Municipal Reform Party. In 1914 he served as chairman of the London County Council, the largest Municipal administration in the world.

At the general election of 1906 he gave up his seat at Manchester and unsuccessfully contested the Harrow division. In 1909 he re-entered Parliament for Taunton, and sat until he succeeded his father in the peerage in 1912.

During the war he became joint parliamentary secretary for the National Service Department, after overseas service with the Bedfordshire Yeomanry, of which he was the colonel. When Mr. Lloyd George reconstituted the Government in 1919 Lord Peel was promoted to be Under Secretary for War, and in April, 1921, he became Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and Minister of Transport.

He joined the standard of revolt of the Conservatives against Lloyd George which culminated in the Carlton Club meeting in 1922, and when Mr. Bonar Law became Prime Minister he was reappointed Secretary of State for India. This cabinet portfolio he first obtained when the late Mr. Montagu resigned in March, 1922. In the first Baldwin ministry, formed in May, 1923, he continued to hold the same post during the life of the ministry, and received his present appointment when Mr. Baldwin's second cabinet was formed after the defeat of the MacDonald administration.

Lord Peel is married to a daughter of Lord Ashton, and they have a son and daughter.

A REMARKABLE TRADITION
The Peel tradition in the British House of Commons is remarkable. The present peer has had two uncles, two great-uncles and two brothers sit in the House of Commons. Both his sisters also married Members of Parliament.

One of his brothers is Hon. Sidney C. Peel, former member for Uxbridge division, who has twice visited here, and the other brother who has sat in the House of Commons is Hon. George Peel, former member for the Spalding division.

Lord Peel, who was born in 1867, following the family tradition, was educated at Harrow and Balliol College, Oxford. After being called to the bar in 1893, he served for some years in the Middlesex Volunteer Rifles, and in 1897 acted as co-respondent for The Daily Telegraph in the Greco-Turkish war.

In 1900 he became Member of Parliament for South Manchester, and in the same year was elected to the London County Council, and eight years later became the leader of the Municipal Reform Party. In 1914 he served as chairman of the London County Council, the largest Municipal administration in the world.

B.C. AIRWAYS ARE HANDLING FREIGHT

Marconi Company Twice Uses Service in Few Days. It Is Announced

A business organization which quickly found useful the services of the rapid transportation provided by the B.C. Airways was the Canadian Marconi Company, who twice during the month have made use of the big Ford trimotor on its flights between Victoria and the Mainland. A week ago it became necessary for the distributors of the Marconi receiving sets at Vancouver, Messrs. Radio Specialists, Limited, to forward to Victoria by air service Marconi equipment that had unavoidably missed connection that morning with the Canadian Pacific Railway steamer out of Vancouver. Yesterday another situation arose which demanded the urgent and personal attention of Mr. L. S. Hawkins, general superintendent, who in order not to upset a prior engagement to give a Marconi Thermionic demonstration with certain out-of-town dealers at Vancouver last night, took the air mail to Victoria, leaving his office at the Bekins Building, Vancouver, at 11:20 a.m., and arriving in Victoria at 1 o'clock. The return trip was made by the 4:15 plane, leaving a large margin of time for last evening's engagement.

"With the heavy demands which are being made upon the Marconi Company from all parts of the province for the 1929 line of broadcast receiving sets, the organization is operating at top pressure, and it is only by taking advantage of such modern facilities of transportation as offer, that extreme times of stress can be met," stated Mr. Hawkins, while in the city yesterday.

"In the opinion of those in the industry, 1929 is regarded as a bumper radio year, and it is estimated that the company has rolling between Victoria and Montreal no less than three carloads of miscellaneous receiving sets. These are all additional to those already in the hands of traders. On Tuesday night, at Vancouver, when the new seven-tube Thermionic combination gramophone and radio was demonstrated, the results were so gratifying and the dealers so impressed that it was found necessary to wire off right away for an additional carload of this model. Its appearance, tone quality and general operating characteristics were so outstanding that several prominent members of the trade, who were among those attending the demonstration, were held spell-bound until the demonstration terminated at midnight."

Ramsay MacDonald

Is Over-Engaged

The secretary of the Canadian Anti-Vivisection Society, Victoria, has received a letter from the Right Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, M.P., former Prime Minister of England, and a parliamentary vice-president of the British Union for Abolition of Vivisection. Mr. MacDonald expresses his regret that he is unable to speak for the local society during his coming visit to Victoria, as he says he is already "over-engaged" with meetings, and can find no time for further addresses.

A number of very important parliamentary representatives in England are heartily supporting the anti-vivisection movement, and every year Lieutenant-Commander Hon. J. M. Kenworthy introduces into the House of Commons a bill for the total abolition of vivisection. The support which the cause is gaining in the House of Commons is an indication that the movement commands itself to public-spirited persons who realize the necessity of combating vivisection on moral and scientific grounds.

QUITE RIGHT

A teacher in a London East End school was giving her class a lesson on various kinds of animals. Later she questioned her pupils to see whether they had been listening to the lesson.

"The camel, the elephant, the cow, and the lion were described more or less accurately."

"Now, who can tell me what a bison is?" asked the teacher finally.

"A small boy stood up."

"Please," he ventured, "a bison is a thing what yer wash yer hands in!"

Victor Answers

... an important question. Last week we asked you to "Watch Victor". For some time now—people have been "Watching Victor". Among other things,—they have been wondering why Victor has not brought out a radio set.

Up to now—Victor has not brought out a Victor Radio set because nothing had seemed good enough to offer the public as a product of Victor Standard.

In other words, BETTER THAN THE GENERAL STANDARD.

To-day, the object has been achieved. Victor standard has been obtained in a radio set. Victor now announces its new Victor (all electric—just plug in) Radio. A radio instrument that is new, revolutionary, and alone among instruments which operate directly from the light socket. The instrument you have been waiting for.

THE NEW VICTOR RADIO (all electric—just plug in) receiving instrument is of such design that it will answer the most exacting modern requirements. Technicians who view it, say it is the most expertly designed, electrically and mechanically, of anything they have ever seen or heard. That is of course, a natural thing to expect from a Company renowned as builders of highest quality sound reproducing instruments.

These marvelous new radio instruments are just beginning to be placed in the shops of His Master's Voice—Victor Radio dealers. If your dealer has one, be sure to hear it this evening. If he has not, then do not fail to ask him to drop you a postal card or ring you up on the telephone as soon as he receives his first one from the factory.

This new invention is not merely a radio set, but a music receiving and reproducing instrument bearing the famous Victor trade mark "HIS MASTER'S VOICE".

YOU HAVE BEEN WAITING FOR IT.

HERE IT IS!

"LADY BETTY"

By JOHN L. CARTER

Author of "The Cinema Girl" "Peggie the Aeronaut," Etc.

CHAPTER XV

A month went by, for Betty a month of pain and re-education. Since meeting Jimmy again her old love for him had grown into a mighty, all-absorbing passion; he was in her every thought, and the prospect of living her days without him at her side was a prospect that was more terrible than death itself. She had had many bitter, introspective ponderings during that month, and had finally come to the point where she had admitted that though she might talk of giving up Jimmy, plan to stop thinking of him, and resolve never to see him again, she still found her thoughts constantly returning to Jimmy, in spite of her. And when she tried to take her thoughts in hand the more unrelentingly they came.

At times her conscience would tell her that she ought not to think of a married man, but she would remember with increased bitterness that Jimmy's marriage had been nothing but a mad freak; she would bitterly assure herself that no one had as much right to Jimmy as herself—but for his mad quixotic act of marrying a woman he did not love, and with whom he had never intended to live. And she told herself that her love for Jimmy was harmless enough, and that none could grudge it her.

She never attempted to see Jimmy, and had not seen him; but she had searched the paper for news of him, and eagerly listened to her friends when they spoke of him and his sudden and assured success. Michaelis called at times, Lady Betty felt very fond of him, but only in a sisterly, almost maternal way. He did not attempt to make love, for which she was very grateful; and he was always harping on the same string, the possibility of Jimmy securing a divorce. In fact his loyalty to Jimmy was as anxious as it was grateful. But the news of Jimmy that Michaelis related to Lady Betty had the effect of depressing rather than cheering her. From what Michaelis said, Jimmy was having a jolly good time. Since the Academy opened he had been entertained by all kinds of artistic societies and individuals, and as Michaelis laughingly said, he was in danger of being spoilt. His Academy picture had been bought by an American millionaire collector, and Jimmy had already three commissions for portraits. He had rented the luxurious studio left vacant by the death of Thomas Brent the R.A., and apparently, all was exceedingly well with him.

Bitterly Lady Betty compared Jimmy's lot with hers. Not that she grudged him success—or happiness—even—but her own life seemed so empty, seemed to have been so utterly wasted, stopped, cut off, and he was so busy, absorbed in his work, a success at last. She wondered if he ever thought of her at all. Michaelis never touched upon that subject, and of course she did not.

Still no one would have guessed from her carefully maintained cheerful manner that she was unhappy. Lord Alister, who was undoubtedly a shrewd man in political matters, took an occasional glance at her face, and told himself that she was getting over her disappointment as well as could be expected. He told himself that it was a grand thing to be going, and that the troubles of youth slipped off one like magic. Indeed he hoped to see her married very soon, and was grateful, and he was always harping on the same string, the possihome with them, so that Lady Betty might get out more. Henrietta Gracely at once began to entertain, and of the men who were attracted to Lady Betty, her favorites were two lordlings, but these were very closely followed by a certain handsome American millionaire and engineer, who had rented somebody's Scottish castle and somebody else's Park Lane mansion. His name was James P. Cracking, and as his money had been made out of pork by his father, perhaps the name was a fitting one. The lordlings were not so deeply smitten as was the American, and moreover unlike him, they had their eyes chiefly on Lord Alister's money; but this did not depress Henrietta Gracely, who wanted to see Lady Betty linked with a genuine peer. In her heart of hearts, Lord Alister, since he was the first to bear the title, was hardly the real thing. Certainly he was not trusted and co-wedded. He had earned that title by his own might and wit. And, as he would proudly boast, he had never paid a brass farthing on any political party for the honor.

Still, the lordlings were shy, especially as Lord Alister made a point of letting folk know that he was not out to throw money away. Indeed, it was very clear that he had no intention of buying Lady Betty a husband, and very frequently and harmlessly and pitifully impetuous peers believed that their salvation depended upon their being able to sell themselves for a good round sum. Perhaps the fact that Lady Betty was a good-looking and charming girl made them linger longer than wisdom advised, as poor ill-starred mottoes linger round the candle that can do them no real good.

Thus it was that James P. Cracking, who stood six feet in his socks, had a back as broad and straight as an oak door, and who was always honest and jolly and clean, began to call very frequently, and never copied these shy lordlings by beating about the bush. He was a millionaire, had been to Harvard, and had inherited from his father that grand quality, grit, and none but prizes would have set him down as "no gentleman" just because his father had dealt in pigs.

Lady Betty and her aunt were one afternoon sitting in the small garden at the back of the house. Miss Gracely was small, skinnily, and had a very long face and a very large nose. She dressed, strangely enough, in rather a girlish fashion, which had irritated Lady Betty greatly. As usual Miss Gracely was talking.

"Of course he is a splendid man," said Mr. Cracking, "he is saying, 'And after all, Lord Thackway, and the young Earl of Giltow are, well, rather pinched for money. Really my dear niece, you will be very unwise if you refuse Mr. Cracking's offer. Suppose we wait till he asks me!'"

Laughter Lady Betty. "Mr. Cracking is quite forty; he is a clever man of the world, and, to be really honest, aunt, I don't see what interest he could possibly have in me. A man of forty is not likely to be carried away. He wants a woman of the world, like himself. I am still a child in almost everything that matters."

Miss Gracely snorted. "What more can a man desire than maidenly innocence—which is so rare in girls nowadays—and fresh young beauty. Oh my dear child, you must be blind, or your looking-glass would tell you what Mr. Cracking comes for."

Lady Betty sighed. "I'm sorry then," she said. "Because I could not possibly marry him."

"I fail to see why you dislike him," said Miss Gracely irritably. "Oh, I don't dislike him at all. I like him. He is so very straight, and so different from many of the men we know."

"There now!" crooned Miss Gracely. "If you actually like him already, when you hardly know him, think how much more you will grow to like him when you know him better."

"I certainly hope to like him better as I come to know him better," said Lady Betty. "But really, aunt, I wish you would get out of your head any idea of matchmaking. I don't intend to marry—ever."

Miss Gracely glanced at her sideways. "Of course you will marry!" she protested quite crossly. "Besides, all nice girls do marry in the end."

Lady Betty shrugged her shoulders resentfully. "Then I suppose I cannot be a nice girl!" she commented. Miss Gracely looked at her dubiously. She had been waiting her chance of administering a word in season. Surely this was the time for it.

"Oh, I wouldn't say that, my dear Betty," she began evenly. "Still, it is a pity that you cannot clear your mind of—it is a pity that you cannot have like ordinary girls and be found it very difficult to get it out."

"Please say exactly what you feel, aunt," said Lady Betty dryly. "I shall prefer it if you speak right out."

Miss Gracely licked her lips and straightened herself. "Very well then, my dear," she said. "What I wish to say is that I think you ought to clear your mind of."

"Well, the fact is, Betty, nice girls don't think about married men," said Lady Betty smiling faintly. "Aunt Henrietta was very old-fashioned, and rather cruel and barbarous in her methods."

"Suppose a girl can't help thinking of a married man?" she said, with equal frankness.

Miss Gracely raised her hands in surprise at that. It was the admission that surprised her. But then, Lady Betty had always been so terribly outspoken, especially about her own failings.

"Oh! help! And you sit there and say you can't help thinking of a married man? Girls have changed since my young days!"

"I have tried, but I can't help myself."

"Well, I would be ashamed to admit it," exclaimed Miss Gracely. "Your outspokenness makes all bounds. I wonder what your poor saint of a mother would have said if Lady Betty fired up at the mention of her mother."

"Mother was by no means a saint! You know quite well that she ran away from home to marry father. She was the dearest, sweetest soul that ever lived."

Miss Gracely shook her head pityingly. "But she lived to repent."

"She did not," flared Lady Betty. "She was happy with father right up to her death."

"Well, and how does that excuse your carrying on with a married man?" countered Miss Gracely. Lady Betty smiled rather pityingly. "I have known Jimmy all my life," she said. "We played together for years. Then he grew up and I found out that I had always loved him. But I have never carried on with him, as you call it. I have never kissed him; he has never kissed me. Still, I love him. If I said I did not, I should be lying."

"That is just it. We are boy and girl still, and there is no harm in my love for him."

"Such a—never heard!" protested Miss Gracely. "Put him right out of your mind, like a modest girl!"

Lady Betty sighed hopelessly. It was useless to point out to Aunt Henrietta that even though she put him out of her mind she would not be able to put him out of her heart. Therefore she said nothing more. "And are you to spoil your life for this foolish infatuation? The best years of your life are slipping away. You will be at the age when no man takes an interest, and then you will look back with regret."

"I shall never regret not marrying him, and I cannot love," said Lady Betty quietly.

"Men? Who talked of men? How do you twist my words! I do say that you could love some good man if you would make up your mind. Mr. Cracking for instance."

Lady Betty put her hand gently on one of her aunts. "Really, Aunt Henrietta, you look on me as a sort of bargain, a matrimonial catch for some deserving man. Women are different nowadays. We think we have the right to suit ourselves, and if we cannot, we stay as we are. Why not? Why should the men be the only ones to choose to suit themselves? And if you don't mind, please leave Mr. Cracking's name out altogether. I respect him far too highly even to think of marrying him without love."

Miss Gracely felt very huffy at that. "Well, don't say that I didn't warn you, that's all," she went on. "And while you may be eating your heart out for Mr. Weston, from all accounts he is bearing up wonderfully. He dines out almost every evening, and seems to be having the time of his life. If you will take the advice of an old woman, Betty, you will forget him; I know men."

With that she rose and swept swiftly from the room, solely so that Lady Betty should not have the last word.

COURT PRESUMED TO BE IGNORANT

Montreal Judge Requires Games Be Demonstrated When Gambling Is Charged

MONTREAL, Aug. 10.—In future, when gambling charges are preferred against persons before the Court of Sessions, it will be necessary for the prosecution to demonstrate the games that the accused were alleged to have been playing and for the time being the court will be transformed into the setting for a faro layout, a roulette wheel, a shirt-sleeve game of "stud" or the more piteous "craps."

Judge Monet, of the Court of Sessions, laid down this requirement as a principle of procedure yesterday when he dismissed charges of frequenting a gambling house, preferred against twenty-eight men who were arrested in a house at Cole St. Michel. The case of Robert Jacob, one of the accused, was taken as a test case under agreement between the Crown and the attorney for the defence, and when Judge Monet dismissed the charge against Jacob, he dismissed it against the twenty-seven others.

The twenty-eight, with Scott Willis, alleged keeper of the house, were arrested towards the close of last month by Provincial detectives who raided the house at Cole St. Michel. A roulette wheel and a crap table were seized. Willis, who was tried for keeping the house, was acquitted after an argument at law. Judge Monet stated yesterday that this did not alter the status of the remaining accused, who were charged with frequenting the house.

There was no doubt, His Lordship said, that the men were playing some games when the raid was staged, and the officers in court testified that the games were roulette and craps. But how, the court asked, was the judge to know whether the games were roulette or craps, or supporting these games were being played, how was the court to know whether or not they were games of chance?

At first glance, Judge Monet commented, this might seem to be a mere "chintiserie" of the law, but it was nevertheless true that the presiding judge was, in law, supposed to be ignorant of the nature of the games played until they were demonstrated to him. In like manner he could not take it for granted that any particular game was a game of chance unless this also was demonstrated to him.

"The court," His Lordship said, "is not supposed to know what 'roulette' is, or what 'craps' is; any more than, in a recent liquor case, the judge was supposed to know that there is gin in a 'John Collins.' For purposes of the law, a judge is not supposed to know what a 'John Collins' is."

In the present case, His Lordship continued, the officers stated that the accused were playing craps on a crap table, yet the alleged crap table was not produced, nor was any effort made to convince the court that craps is a game of chance as defined by the Criminal Code.

Adding that the reasons for dismissal were technicalities, Judge Monet cited jurisprudence in support of his decision, and mentioned a case in which Chief Judge Perrault, of the Court of Sessions, dismissed a complaint because the offence was alleged to have been committed at a sal, a St. Lawrence boulevard number, but the complaint did not say whether the street was in Montreal, St. Jean d'Iberville or Kamichika. The jurisdiction of the court to hear the case was challenged, and Chief Judge Perrault dismissed the charge.

There was no doubt in his mind, Judge Monet added, that the house at Cole St. Michel was a gambling house, but this fact had not been proved in the case under discussion. For this reason the charge against Jacob was dismissed, and because of the agreement between Joseph Cohen, K.C., counsel for the defence, and the Crown, the twenty-seven other cases were also dismissed.

Ontario Makes Big Seizure of Stocks of Liquor

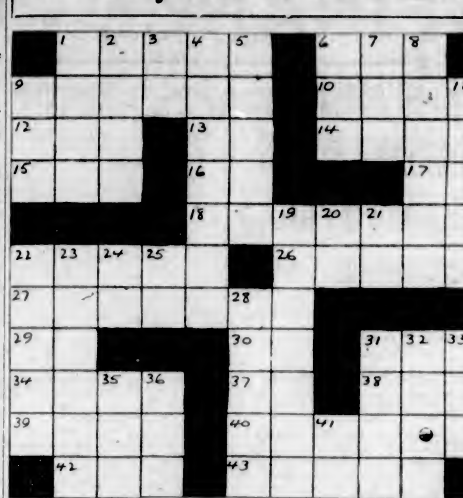

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 10.—Seizing every export export dock from Belle River to Kingsville and placing their wet stocks, aggregating several millions of dollars in value, under police guard, the Ontario Government today charged every exporter on the border with unlawful possession of liquor and ordered them to appear in court to answer the charge.

Firing broadsides of subpoenas along the entire waterfront, Provincial Police guards, under the command of Inspector F. E. Elliott, of Toronto, served legal notice on thirty-six exporters of the attack on them by the Ontario Liquor Control Board, the body through which the Attorney-General's Department is moving.

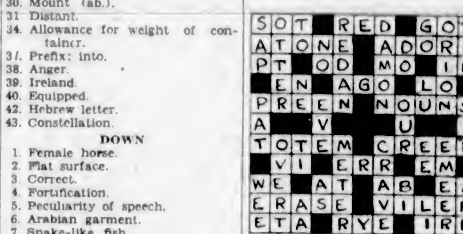

Heading the list of exporters was Harry Low, head of the Carling Brewery, Erie Transit Company, and Sid Nathanson, head of the Inter-Transit Company, an exporting concern for the widespread liquor interests.

Simultaneously, another agreement was signed whereby Great Britain pledged herself to enter into negotiations with China upon the subject of treaty revisions.

INCREASE IN MONEY RATES DROPS PRICES

Final Quotations Generally Lower — Chrysler and Dodge Afford Outstanding Exceptions

FOUR-CENT BREAK IN WHEAT FUTURES

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Trading in today's stock market was unsettled by the marking up of the call money rate to 8 per cent, an increase in bankers' acceptances bids to 61-2 per cent for time money, and a rise of more than four cents a bushel in wheat futures. With a few conspicuous exceptions, final quotations were generally lower, with numerous declines of 2 to 4 points.

Chrysler was the outstanding feature, soaring 93-4 points to a new high record at 94-3-4. Dodge Bros. issues received corresponding gains, the preferred jumping 101-8 points to 95-1-2, also a new high. General Motors ran into heavy selling, closing 17-9 points lower at 183-1-2, after having dipped to 181-1-4.

Montgomery Ward, United Biscuits, Grand Stores preferred, and St. Louis Southwestern were among the issues to attain new top prices for the year or longer. Selling pressure was particularly effective against Allied Chemical American Tobacco B. Commonwealth Power and Union Carbide, all off 2 points or more, and the Pisk Rubber issues which touched new low levels for the year.

Foreign exchange held steady in quiet trading, sterling cables ruling around $4.85-2.

The bond market wilted under the pressure of advancing money rates today, with the close irregularly and most prices tending downward.
